U.S. Probe Shows Lance 'Recycles' His Loan Collateral

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN and
RICHARD E. MEYER

Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance pledged stock dividends as part of the collateral for a $2,625,000 loan from a New York bank, then broke the agreement by putting up the same stock dividends as collateral for a loan from another bank.

A spokesman for Lance, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, acknowledged that Lance violated the terms of a clause in the loan agreement he signed June 30, 1975, with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. But the spokesman repeatedly emphasized that the bank was not concerned enough to call in the loan.

The transactions are disclosed in bank records of Lance's personal loans, made public by federal banking investigators. Government officials interviewed Thursday said they saw no violation of federal law.

action an apparent breach of contract.

"It's very clear that both banks expected the stock," a House investigator said. "Bert Lance clearly gave the impression to both banks that they would get the shares."

Lance's spokesman, Robert W. Dietsch, was asked: You don't dispute that up until the end of the documentary record of the loan, Manufacturers thought they were going to get the stock dividends, they didn't get them and the language that Lance signed indicated that he would in fact send them any such dividends?

"That's all true," Dietsch replied. "It's all there and it's all in the written record. It's also true that the loan was not called. It's also, I think, true that there were additional discussions about what was adequate collateral on the terms of the loan.

"And I think, too, that the written documents have to be taken in the context of all the circumstances that took place between the time the loan was put on and the time the loan was paid off."

Asked if the written document ever was revised, Dietsch replied, "Obviously not. At least not what we have in this file. I have no reason to believe there

Youth, 17, Charged In Traffic Death

ALLEGAN, Mich. (AP) — A 17-year-old Allegan youth is charged with manslaughter in the traffic death of a member of a state highway department crew the day before. The youth, Dean Borgert, demanded a preliminary examination in Allegan District Court and was released on $500 cash bond after his arraignment Thursday on the open charge of manslaughter. No date was set for the examination. Borgert is alleged to be the driver of a car that hit and killed George Anderson, 41, of Paw Paw, Wednesday afternoon as Anderson was working along Michigan 89 west of Otsego. Anderson was the foreman of a state sewer survey crew.

Admissions Rising At Paw Paw Hospital

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Charges that local control of Lake View Community hospital here has been surrendered, that layoffs have created critical shortages and that hospital employees have been threatened were leveled last night at hospital officials. In a near four-hour hospital board meeting that drew 150 people, hospital officials denied the allegations and added that a sudden influx of patients had prompted the recall of about half the 45 employees released earlier this month.

Hospital officials also announced that a doctor recruitment committee has been formed. The hospital has lost in the last three years nearly 50 per cent of the physicians who admit patients to the hospital.

The hospital has been a target of criticism since it announced Aug. 5 that 45 employees had been released to ease financial problems at the hospital's 59-bed acute-care facility.

The layoffs were approved Aug. 3 during a joint meeting of the hospital board's finance and executive committees at which it was revealed the hospital's acute care facility had lost $6,682 during the month of July. That loss followed a $141,083 deficit incurred for the fiscal year ending last March, according to Dr. Allen McNeill, board finance chairman.

Hospital Administrator Michael Payne said that during July the daily average hospital census was only about 25 patients. The staff cuts, according to a recent statement released by the hospital board, were made to reduce the number of employees per patient from 5.7 to just under three, a figure that would be more in line with other hospitals of similar size.

Payne said the cuts were made with the expectation that patient census would be 35 per day. But from Aug. 7-20 the hospital has had 81 new admissions, raising the average number staying in the hospital to 47 or 48, he said. This in turn, has made it possible for about half the 45 laid off employees to be called back to work, Payne said.

During last night's meeting, which had to be shifted from the hospital cafeteria to the auditorium of the Michigan avenue school to accommodate the crowd, several persons charged that the hospital board had allowed Eastmark, a professional consulting firm, to take over the hospital.

"You've hired someone to run your community hospital," said Rosalind Wright, a former nurse at Lake View.

She said that between Payne, who is paid $24,000 a year, and Eastmark, the hospital board was spending some $70,000 annually to administer the hospital. She questioned why the board did not just hire one administrator to handle the situation.

Horace Adams, hospital board secretary, replied that when the board retained Eastmark (then known as Videre, Inc.) to manage the hospital in August, 1976, problems were so severe that it required the services of more than one man. He said the company has straightened out a number of problems caused by past poor management and saved money.

None of the hospital board members or Eastmark executives present at last night's meeting were able to give an

Judge's Dog Costs Him Fine

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns was cast in the role of a defendant Wednesday. Byrns, who lives at 296 Ridgeway, St. Joseph, was sentenced in Berrien District court to fine and costs of $30 for allowing his Labrador Retriever to run at large in his neighborhood Aug. 23.

Byrns said the $30 sum is a standard sentence and added "No, I didn't get any professional discount."

According to the ticket, Ken Welsher, a county animal control officer, spotted the dog at large Tuesday at 2 p.m. Byrns said the dog had been penned up earlier and "it was just my luck that when he got out the dog-catcher went past."

Welsher didn't impound the dog. Instead, he went to the courthouse and told Byrns the dog was loose. Byrns said Welsher told him he didn't like ticketing the judge but felt he should. Byrns said he thought a ticket was in order and it was written. After Welsher handed Byrns the ticket they shook hands.

Byrns signed the ticket and had his secretary take it to District court, he said. Magistrate Justine Smith sentenced Byrns Wednesday. The judge added that the ticket could have been paid by mail.

The Byrns family is now keeping a close eye on the dog.

Text Of Judge's Remarks Spices Recall Campaign

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Feminists say release of a transcript from a juvenile rape hearing will help their recall campaign against a judge whose remarks they branded as outrageous sexism. But Dane County Judge Archie Simonson said he was "overjoyed and very happy" Thursday with the transcript and said he would use the text in speeches during his campaign for next month's recall election. Simonson had said the full context of his remarks from the bench — including comments on sexual permissiveness in Madison — would exonerate him from a storm of criticism.

News accounts after the hearing reported Simonson had implied it was "normal" for a 15-year-old boy to assault a 16-year-old girl in reaction to scanty women's clothing and permissive attitudes. Opponents managed to obtain 35,000 signatures, forcing a recall election Sept. 7 in which Simonson and five challengers will seek his judicial post. The 52-year-old Simonson, elected to the bench in 1972 after practicing law in Madison for 20 years, had been scheduled to go up for reelection in April 1978.

"How could Judge Simonson have thought release of transcript would have a chilling effect on his recall when it merely elaborates the sexism already reported?" Anne Gaylor, a leader in the recall petition drive and a member of the National Organization for Women (NOW), asked Thursday. The transcript was released Thursday by Circuit Judge William Sachtlein over the objections of attorneys for the teenagers involved. "This community is well known to be sexually permissive," Simonson said in the transcript. "Look at the newspapers, look at the sex clubs, the advertisements of sex, the availability of it through your escort services, the prostitutes, they are being picked up daily."

"Go down State Street and the university area. I used to see girls clothed like that and I had to pay a lot of money to go into the south side of Chicago to view what I see down on State Street today. "Even in the open court we have people appearing — women appearing without bras and with the nipples fully exposed and they think it is smart and they sit here on the witness stand with their dresses up over the cheeks of their butts and we have this type of thing in the schools," Simonson said in the transcript. The girl involved in the school assault case had been wearing blue jeans, sneakers and a blouse over a turtle-neck sweater.

"So is that the attitude of the community?"

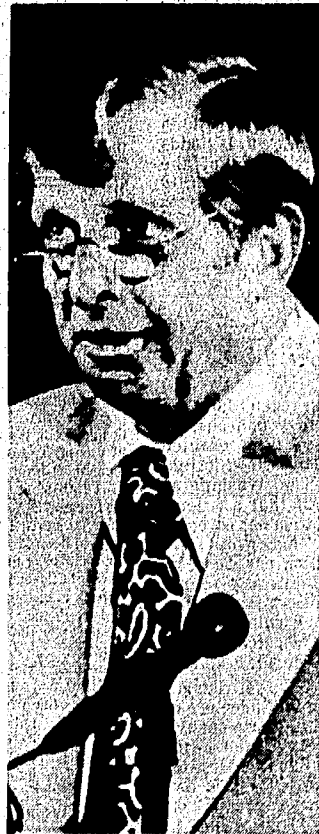

Simonson continued in the transcript. "... Are we supposed to take an impressionable person 15 or 16 years of age who can respond to something like that and punish that person severely because they react to it normally?" It was the idea that assault might be a normal reaction to permissiveness that created the uproar. Simonson followed recommendations of social workers and sentenced the youth, who pleaded no contest to delinquency for second degree sexual assault, to one year in his parents' custody under court supervision.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Meryl Manhardt argued that public interest demanded more severe punishment. Her remarks provoked the comments from Simonson, the transcript shows. After his remarks, the judge asked Ms. Manhardt to comment. "Your Honor, with all due respect, I find your remarks about women's clothing particularly sexist," she said. "You bet it is," Simonson answered. "I can't go around walking exposing my genitals the way they can the mammary glands."

"You are reflecting the general theory that a woman provokes an assault and I cannot accept that idea," Ms. Manhardt replied. "It sure raises a lot of interest in my mind from time to time," Simonson shot back. Ms. Gaylor said the transcripts destroy Simonson's earlier explanation that his comments were narrowly concerned with the arousal of young men and did not pertain to the particular case.

"How ridiculous," she said. "No one considers punishing arousal." Judy Goldsmith, a NOW official from Manitowoc, contended the release of the transcripts had little effect, saying the judge had made it clear in previous statements that he does not understand rape and thinks women provoke attacks.

"I'm overjoyed and very, very happy," Simonson said by telephone from northern Wisconsin where he was vacationing Thursday evening. "I do believe it will be very, very helpful." But he repeated his contention that reports of the hearing had taken his comments out of context. He said his real opinion on sexual assault was in a part of the transcript reading that "the commission of a sexual assault or the commission of any crime obviously ... is an act that is not going to be condoned by the community." He said the most widely quoted portion of the transcript, referring to the "normal" reaction to permissiveness, had been meant as a question, not a comment, as he sought to get more information from the prosecutor.

JUDGE SIMONSON
Pleased by release

The judge's campaign treasurer, James Campbell, said voters should read the transcript and make up their own minds on the issue. The Wisconsin State Journal planned to print the entire transcript, with deletions only to protect the identities of juveniles involved in the case. As far as police records indicate, the 16-year-old girl was touched indecently by three boys, and she was assaulted by one while another held her down. In Wisconsin, second-degree sexual assault can be either sexual contact or intercourse without consent.

Charges against one of the three youths were dismissed because of his testimony, while a second youth, accused of helping the 15-year-old, was given a year's sentence in a Milwaukee residential treatment center.

Judge Recall Try Fizzles In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attempt by feminists to recall a judge who suggested that female hitchhikers should expect sexual advances has apparently fizzled. Judge Lynn Compton of the 2nd Court of Appeals set off a storm of protest last month when he reversed a rape conviction of Clifford Alan Hunt, who had picked up a Thousand Oaks waitress after she left her car on the Ventura Freeway with a mechanic. She testified that she yielded to his sexual advances because she feared he would rape and murder her. But in reversing Hunt's conviction, based on faulty jury instruction, the judge added a warning to women hitchhikers: "The lone female hitchhiker in the absence of an emergency situation, as a practical matter, advises all who pass by that she is willing to enter the vehicle with anyone who stops, and in so doing advertises she has less concern for the consequences than the average female."

"Under such circumstances, it would not be unreasonable for a man in the position of defendant here to believe that the female would consent to sexual relations."

Compton's comments drew sharp criticism from several organizations, including the Los Angeles Commission on Assaults Against Women, the National Organization of Women, and Women Against Rape and Men Against Rape. Some of the groups suggested a campaign would be mounted to remove him from the bench, similar to a successful petition that forced a recall election for a Wisconsin judge who implied rape was a normal reaction for a boy exposed to scantily dressed women. The state attorney general's office also protested the ruling and pressed for a rehearing of the matter. An appellate judge later removed some of the language deemed offensive by feminist groups, but he let the reversal of the rape conviction stand.

Big Game Hunt In BH School Segregation Case

Except as they may issue an advisory opinion on the constitutionality of a proposed legislative enactment or administrative rulings, courts will not accept a moot case.

A moot case is defined in the legal dictionaries as one which seeks to determine an abstract question that does not arise upon existing facts or circumstances.

The advisory opinion to the legislative or executive branches fits into that category because until either of those branches makes a move there really is not much to discuss. The courts issue such opinions as a courtesy simply to show their partners in the governmental structure what is a reliable footpath and what might lead into a legal swamp.

Otherwise, the rule is virtually ironclad that a court will not indulge in the hypothetical skirmishes which are standard procedure in law school instruction.

Noel Fox, the presiding judge in the federal district for western Michigan, comes close to abandoning this principle in his decision finding the Benton Harbor school board 10 years indulged in maneuvers to keep its white and black student body in separated facilities.

The late Wallace Kent who first heard the suit filed in 1967 by the NAACP ruled three years later the district was separated but not through design on the board's part.

The 6th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Kent. In 1973 it returned the case to the district court ordering Kent to take further evidence on whether or not the board had developed a segregation plan.

This week Fox found an intentional course of conduct aimed at intended segregation.

He bolstered his opinion with a finding there is still some evidence of de jure segregation.

If it exists, it is peripheral in extent because since the Appeals Court ruling four years ago the board has integrated its schools in fact.

Fox's finding of illegal action a decade ago actually is a springboard.

to the second phase in the NAACP's suit.

This is a petition to pull the old Eaman grade district out of the Coloma system back into the Benton Harbor district and to certify once and for all that the Sodus area is a part of the Benton Harbor district. Presently as a result of conflicting opinions from the district court, the state board of education and the Berrien circuit court, Sodus is floating in a legal limbo. Some of its students attend in the Eau Claire district; others go to Benton Harbor.

Fox has indicated hearings will commence next month on whether citizen groups in Eaman and Sodus, the Coloma and Eau Claire districts, the state board and other agencies involved in school district boundary questions have participated in a de jure effort to back down the Benton Harbor district into essentially and all black enrollment.

The possibility of the NAACP trying to add the St. Joseph and Watervliet districts as defendants is also present.

Since his first opinion referred to previous redistricting proposals as "transparent attempts" to establish segregated school districts, all the defense lawyers facing their counterparts for the NAACP are predicting Fox will translate attempt into fact and order a massive expansion of the Benton Harbor district.

Although the U.S. Supreme Court recently gave a new lease on life to the neighborhood school, at least as between one district to the next, in holding actual intent to segregate must be shown, the betting is that Fox will find no trouble in establishing that requirement.

Any of the defendants could appeal such a conclusion.

Appeals cost money and nervous energy.

So, far the moment this is something for the bookies to lay odds on the continued existence of the neighborhood. In the Twin City vicinity.

Church Of Scientology: For Religion Or Profit?

A debate continues over whether the Church of Scientology — which celebrates its Founder's Day Thursday, Sept. 1 — actually is a church. Since its founding by L. Ron Hubbard about 25 years ago, the Scientology movement has been involved in battles with government agencies over whether it should be granted tax-exempt status as a nonprofit church. At the heart of the controversy are the fees charged to help parishioners find enlightenment. Arthur J. Maren, the national director of public affairs for the church, recently estimated that the amount paid to the church for a three-year course can reach $4,000.

Of the 24 Scientology churches in this country, 13 have been granted tax-exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service. The Washington Post reported July 24 that a federal government investigation has revealed that the 24 churches "may gross from $2 million to $3 million per week, or more than $100-million every year." Scientology officials say that 10 per cent of each church's earnings goes to the "mother church" located in Saint Hill Manor, East Grinstead, England.

Hubbard, who is now retired and living abroad, said in a 1948 lecture on science fiction: "Writing for a penny a word is ridiculous. If a man really wanted to make a million dollars, the best way would be to start his own religion." Scientology officials say that Hubbard was joking when he made that statement, but the U.S. government evidently does not think so. Various agencies have been investigating the church's finances for many years. There have been several FBI evidence-gathering raids on Scientology churches during the last 20 years. A highly publicized operation occurred July 8 when teams of government agents simultaneously entered Scientology churches in Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles.

The church is involved in a number of lawsuits stemming from that raid and others. It filed a $1-million damage suit Aug. 15 in Washington and a $7.8-million damage suit in Los Angeles against the FBI, claiming it resorted to illegal methods in carrying out the raids. In addition, the church has filed other suits totaling some $790 million — against the State Department, the FBI, the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and still other government agencies. Most of the suits charge the government with harassment and other illegal acts.

Who's Upset?

Parents Say Cuts Aim At Washington School

Editor

As parents who live in the Washington school area in St. Joseph, we are stunned by the lack of consideration and absence of regard for the children shown by the school board's decision to make their budget cuts, consisting of the elimination of three teachers' salaries, and the one adjustment based on population projections, the cutting of one kindergarten section, all at Washington school.

We are apprehensive about the future of Washington school in spite of repeated assurances of Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Pfoemeier that there are no plans about to close any schools. The appearance in black and white of the phrase "most marketable" used in reference to Washington school on Mr. Aldrich's memoranda to school board members really causes concern. Why would such a phrase ever occur to a person who is not even considering the sale of the building in question? We have lived in St. Joseph for 20 years and have had children in Washington school for 12 years. This neighborhood has been surprisingly stable when two third grades feed into one fourth grade? Will the Board hire another teacher?

One way to cause a drop in enrollment at Washington school that would require its eventual closing is exactly the method in the works now; the threat of closing, the undesirable busing of even kindergarten children in a situation filled with uncertainty. What parent in his right or her right mind would move into such a school district if given a choice? What is the point in rezoning several downtown area blocks single-family dwellings? Families have children and children need schools. And for the parents who have not the option of moving out of the downtown low-rent district — well, who cares about them anyway?

The Board first showed ignorance and then lack of concern for the fact that there may be a serious loss of Title I money caused by this move. Benefits of federal Title I programs are intended for the disadvantaged student and have provided many extras at Washington school which have helped balance the scales for some children who needed that extra attention. We would like to know what will become of this program this year and in the future.

This move by the school board has serious implications for the downtown St. Joseph area. Two retirement homes and ten blocks of law offices hardly constitute a balanced community.

In our view, the neighborhood school is a very desirable element in the urban environment. We should not dilute its influence by busing a large percentage of students from the downtown area.

Fringe Benefits At The Pentagon

WASHINGTON — In the files of the U.S. District Court here is a newly published and little noticed chapter in the continuing saga of how big business deals with big government.

It's the sordid story of a defense contractor offering — and Pentagon employees accepting — lavish meals at Washington restaurants, weekend trips to a posh California resort, free tickets to baseball and football games, complimentary plane trips and invitations to golf and fishing outings.

That recent admission of improprieties comes from the Aerojet General Corp., which says the unethical practices were halted last year after the Department of Defense (DoD) issued new regulations governing "standards of conduct" for both military officers and civilian employees.

Yet Aerojet's own report notes that for more than a decade there has been in force a Pentagon prohibition against acceptance of "any gift, gratuity, favor, entertainment, loan or any other thing of monetary value" offered by a defense contractor.

That 1967 directive "was apparently neither strictly enforced nor taken seriously," says the Aerojet report. "In any event, defense contractors, including Aerojet, were willing to entertain DoD personnel, and there were hundreds who would accept the entertainment."

The new disclosures are contained in a bulky document compiled by Aerojet's parent company, the General Tire & Rubber Co., which established a special committee to investigate allegedly improper payments.

"The precise extent to which Aerojet entertained government personnel over the years cannot be measured accurately," the report says, because for at least two decades "company employees who entertained federal officials almost never identified their guests on their expense accounts.

"Government employees particularly military personnel, did not want their names to appear in records which would be audited by the government's Defense Contract Audit Agency," explains the report. A survey of Aerojet's generosity indicates they had good reason to seek anonymity. Some examples:

Free meals regularly were proffered to DoD officials who could help the company. Aerojet's Washington office "has conducted an almost daily practice of entertaining government personnel," with individual restaurant bills often amounting to $25-$35 per person "and sometimes more."

Aerojet frequently provided tickets for DoD personnel attending sporting and theatrical events. For the 1973 Rose Bowl game, the company brought a Winnebago camper to the stadium parking lot "and served food and drinks to approximately 100 invited guests, many of them military officers or other governmental personnel with whom Aerojet was then working."

All of those favors were offered in the name of "improving communications" and "fostering" good working relationships. Similar gratuities were provided by Aerojet to officials of two other federal agencies, the Energy Research and Development Administration and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Defense and space contracting are highly competitive, and there is evidence that most other aerospace firms have been equally profligate in paying for entertainment of government personnel. Notwithstanding the recent spate of sanctimonious corporate statements about "going straight," is there any reason to believe the situation has changed today?

Americans Still Laugh At Bikes

WASHINGTON — They laughed when Rep. Paul Tsongas sat down at the committee table and played "Bicycle Built for Two."

Well, that's not exactly how it happened, but it captured the spirit of the affair. The Democratic congressman from Massachusetts managed to get the bicycle in the official record as an alternative to the automobile in the President's new energy conservation package, despite the initial hoots of his colleagues.

The energy program now orders the Department of Transportation to study ways to encourage expanded use of bicycles for urban commuting, including such problems as the cost of providing showers at work, bike trails through tunnels and congested areas, adaptation of mass transit to bike transport, and places to park bicycles safely near office buildings. It's only a study, but it's a start.

At first, most of Tsongas' fellow congressmen didn't even want to discuss the subject. Noting that the measure claimed bicycles to be the most efficient means of transportation, Rep. Mickey Edwards (R-Okla.) observed sarcastically, "That is an obvious slight to the manufacturers of roller skates and skateboards."

"Are we going to concentrate and come up with a real solution on energy for America, or are we going off on this sidetrack about a study of bicycles and have Americans all move back to the farm?" Rep. James Collis (R-Tex.) complained. "We are the only country in the world that finds the use of bicycles to be humorous," Tsongas retorted. He was helped by Reps. Robert Eckhardt (D-Tex.) and Edward Patillo (D-N.Y.), both of whom ride bikes to work every day.

There are already some 50 million bicycles in use in this country, mostly for recreation rather than commuting. A study done recently for the District of Columbia indicated that if major handicaps to citybiking were removed, some 14,000 cyclists would be commuting into the city regularly in less than 10 years. The Bicycle Manufacturers Association optimistically predicts that 75 million people might pedal to work if proper safety systems were developed.

Bikes have long since ceased being a toy for children. There are some 35 million more bikes in use now than a decade ago, mostly by adults. They offer transportation, exercise, freedom from pollution (except for cars in adjoining lanes) and even a sense of romance: they are a lot cheaper than gas-guzzlers.

Encouraging the serious use of bicycles will not solve the energy crisis. There are many of us who are simply too lazy to pedal. But some estimates indicate a substantial increase in biking could mean a savings of 87 million gallons of gas a year. And that's not to be sneezed at.

Timing Of SEC Report Irks Mayor Beame

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is releasing its controversial report on New York City's finances less than two weeks before the city's Democratic mayoral primary. The study, expected to be made public today, became a campaign issue while it was being compiled. Mayor Abraham Beame, concerned that the report would damage his chances in the Sept. 8 primary, questioned the impartiality of the SEC in its conduct of the investigation.

Signup Begins Monday For BH Adult Classes

Registration for adult education classes in the Benton Harbor school district will be held at senior high school from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Aug. 28 through Sept. 1 and Sept. 6, 7, and 8, according to Edward Woods, adult education director. Adult education services at Benton Harbor area schools consist of adult night high school, General Education Development (GED), adult basic education, technical and skill classes.

Classes are free except for a $5 book deposit for adult high school and a $10 fee for the GED test, Woods said. Senior citizens 60 years or older who are residents of the school district qualify for a golden age card which allows free registration for all adult education classes, according to Woods. The card also provides free admission to all other school activities including athletic, music and drama presentations.

The tentative schedule of courses offered by the adult education services is:

Monday — English 9-1, 10-1, and 11-1, Civics I, Typing I, general math, beginning sewing, oil painting, and record keeping.

Tuesday — Typing II, Civics II, woodworking-carpentry, U.S. History I, word study, and beginning sewing.

Wednesday — Current American Problems, general math, English 9-11, 10-11 and 11-11, child care, speed reading, art-jewelry, advanced sewing, and shorthand.

Thursday — Office procedures, speech, human biology, U.S. History II, men's tailoring, drawing and welding.

Registration will take place in the lobby at the Cofax entrance to the gymnasium. Woods said registration can also be made by calling the adult education services office at the high school during business hours. Classes for adult night high school will begin Sept. 6 and GED and Adult Basic Education classes will begin Sept. 12.

Sunday's Program To Salute Elvis

The St. Joseph Municipal band concerts Sunday will have a varied program — two women's vocal groups, a trumpet soloist and two numbers in memory of Elvis Presley.

The afternoon concert is at 2:30 and will be repeated at 7:30 in Howard bandshell, Lake boulevard and Port street. Admission is free.

Vocalists will be the Sing-A-Lings, a Twin City YWCA club of 20 members directed by Edna Reil, and the Villagers from Chicago, a women's barbershop quartet which has won honors in international competition.

Dr. Donald Moely, head of the music department at Lake Michigan college, will perform as trumpet soloist. His numbers will be the rondo from the Hummel trumpet concerto and "Winterscope," a new composition by John Cacavas.

Director John E.N. Howard said the band will play "Suspicious Minds" and "Heartbreak Hotel," two of Presley's million record sellers. The band also will answer requests for "Slaughter on 10th Avenue" and Sousa's "Manhattan Beach March."

$200,000 Napier Office Over One Hurdle

The Benton township planning commission last night recommended approval of a rezoning request to allow construction of a $200,000 professional office building at 189 East Napier avenue in Fairplain.

Another rezoning request to permit construction of seven duplex apartments in a subdivision just north of the Whirlpool administrative center was sent to committee for further study.

The rezoning request for the office building was made by Ralph Laverty of St. Joseph, who told the planning commission he plans to build a 6,400-square-foot office building on the site. The planning commission recommended rezoning the 150 by 150-foot parcel from residential to commercial.

Laverty said he currently does not have clients for the office space but plans to lease the building for use as medical or insurance offices. A house currently on the site will be demolished before construction begins in the spring, he said. The location is between Cofax avenue and Broadway.

The duplex apartments are proposed for seven 110 by 171-foot lots along Monte court. The request for rezoning from single to two-family dwelling was made by James Fulton of Bridgman.

Fulton was represented by Dan Shoenemann of Fister and Clements Realtors of St. Joseph. Fulton and Shoenemann also appeared before the St. Joseph township planning commission last month and requested rezoning to build two apartment buildings containing 15 units at 598 West Napier avenue, Fairplain. St. Joseph township planners tabled that request awaiting more detailed plans.

BH Folklore, Bluegrass Festival Is Saturday

The Benton Harbor Lions club is sponsoring a day-long Folklore and Bluegrass festival Saturday at Benton township park on the St. Joseph river.

Ron Ravitch, club president, said gates will open at 10 a.m., and there will be concerts starting at 11 and 3 p.m. Five area bands are scheduled to perform — Hickory Creek, Sugar Foot, the Roustabout String Band, Greats Lakes Grass, and Jan Burda and Ann Miller.

Tickets are $3.50 at the gate or $1 if purchased in advance from Lions club members, $2 for senior citizens, and $1.75 for children under 12. Preschoolers are admitted free.

Ravitch said all profits from the festival will be used for sight conservation in the Benton Harbor area. He said the Lions pay for eye care and

Record Holiday Driving Seen

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State drivers may be heading for a Labor Day weekend driving record, says the Department of State Highways and Transportation. The department on Thursday estimated that motorists will drive 680 million miles over the four days of the weekend. That is 20 million miles more than the 660-million mile record set last year. The prediction is based on rising traffic counts this year, the department said. Motorists set records for both the Memorial Day and Fourth of July weekends. Only bad weather could cut down on driving. The state will suspend all highway construction from 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 2, to Tuesday morning, Sept. 6.

Lakeshore Board Delays Budget Cuts Decisions

A special meeting of the Lakeshore school board slated for Monday has been cancelled, according to Supt. Frederick Schmidt.

The meeting had been called to decide what cuts would be made in the district's 1977-78 school operating budget following defeat of an additional millage request.

Schmidt said the meeting was cancelled since a vote by the Lakeshore Education Association (LEA) on a new multi-year master teaching contract has been set for Tuesday, Aug. 30.

Man Injured In Second Main-Crystal Smashup

Benton township police said a 61-year-old man was admitted to Mercy hospital Thursday after a collision at the intersection of East Main and Crystal avenue similar to a crash Monday in which a Niles woman died.

Reported in "fair" condition today was Philip J. Hogan, of Forest Beach road, Watervliet township.

According to Patrolman Jim Windsor, Hogan was hurt at 11:20 a.m. Thursday when the car he was driving west on East Main collided with a truck driven north on Crystal by Cornelius J. VanWezema Jr., 18, of Kalamazoo.

Windsor said VanWezema told him he did not notice a stop sign at the intersection and proceeded across East Main into the path of the Hogan auto which struck his truck broadside.

Monday, Dolores M. Holcomb, 62, was killed when she reportedly failed to stop at the same intersection and her northbound auto was struck broadside by a westbound truck. The truck driver was held blameless in that crash.

After Thursday's crash, VanWezema was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Windsor said. The officer also said he will request a traffic study be conducted at the intersection in the wake of the recent accidents.

In another accident, Benton township police reported Ada Lard, 62, and Beulah Lovell, 62, both of 1331 East Napier avenue, were treated and released from Mercy hospital after sustaining cuts in a two-car collision Thursday.

BH Blaze May Have Been Arson

Benton Harbor firemen said arson is suspected in a fire Thursday night that caused minor damage to walls of a small building at 426½ Territorial road.

Firemen reported a plastic gallon milk container with traces of gasoline in it was found at the scene of the 11:45 blaze. They described the structure as an "out building" behind the Ponderosa bar. The owner was reported as Ray Hampton.

VAN CONVERSION: Jack Miller, district manager of newly opened Van Vinyl of Michigan, 2174 South M-139, Benton township, says his firm takes a plain one-seat van and converts it into scenic luxury. Van

Vinyl of Michigan is a division of the Elkhart Motor Car company and stocks accessories for vans, pickups and motor homes as well as making conversions. (Staff photo)

Boy, 4, Hit By Car; Hospitalized

A four-year-old Lincoln township boy was listed in "fair" condition today in Memorial hospital with a "probable skull fracture" after he was struck by a car near his home Thursday afternoon, Berrien sheriff's officers said. Deputy Don Deford reported Chad Scharnowski, of 17F Lincolnwood estates, was injured at 2:45 p.m. when he stepped into the path of a slow moving car from behind a parked auto on Lincolnwood drive. According to Deford, Aya B. Daugherty, 19, of 604 West John Beers road, Lincoln township, said she was driving west on Lincolnwood at about five miles per hour when the boy stepped into the path of her car. No ticket was issued, he said.

BH Signing Children For Title I Screening

Parents who live in the Benton Harbor schools Title I target area may now register their preschool age children for screening tests to determine eligibility for the limited enrollment Title I program. Registration can be made at the preschool office at Boynton elementary school, 1700 East Britain avenue, from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m. daily, according to Harold Stephens, group director of elementary education.

The federally funded Title I preschool program is for economically disadvantaged youngsters and attempts to prepare them for the start of regular school.

The target area for the Title I program includes preschool children living in the Sterne Brunson, Calvin Britain, Bard, Boynton, Morton Columbus and Seely McCord elementary school areas. Children who are at least three years old before Dec. 1 are eligible for screening, Stephens said. A 10-item test covering a variety of skills will be given to youngsters new to the program with those identified as having the greatest need selected for the program, Stephens said. Approximately 150 children will be selected, Stephens said. The screening location and date will be announced later, he said.

MUD-COATED HIPPO: The skin of this mud-coated hippo contains special pores which secrete a pinkish substance, thick, oily and protective in nature. This "blood sweat" allows the animal to remain in water or dry atmosphere on land for extended periods. But water and mud are his principal domains, and "Upcountry Uganda," Jeanne and John Goodman's Audubon Wildlife Film, contains some beautiful footage on this massive herbivore and Uganda.

KODIAK BEAR: The largest of bears, the Alaskan brown — or Kodiak — bear, can reach a head and body length of nine feet or more. This also makes him the largest living carnivore, although some are vegetarians. Capable of attaining 34 years of age, the Alaskan brown bear has been captured on film by Walter Berlet for his work, "West Side Story — Mexico to Alaska," an Audubon Wildlife Film.

BISON: A part of American history, the bison brings to mind Indians, the plains, cowboys, pioneers and slaughter. By 1899, 50 million bison had been reduced in number to a grand total of 541. Since then, their numbers have slowly increased, and they remain as symbols of the great plains of the United States, part of which serves as the locale of Allen King's Audubon Wildlife Film, "Song of the Northern Prairie."

WHITETAIL DEER: The whitetail deer is one of the most widely known and hunted game animals in North America. Despite man and other natural enemies, these deer number in the millions in the United States. A variety of animals are portrayed in their natural habitats in Tom Sterling's Audubon Wildlife Film, "The Marsh — A Quiet Mystery." This is one of five films being sponsored by Sarett Nature Center for 1977-78.

Announce 1977-78 Wildlife Films

A series of five Audubon Wildlife films, sponsored by Sarett Nature Center, Benton Harbor, and the National Audubon Society, will be presented during the 77-78 season.

The films to be presented are: "West Side Story — Mexico to Alaska," by Walter H. Berlet, Sept. 29; "Upcountry Uganda," by Jeanne and John Goodman, Nov. 10; "Exploring Big Bend," by Charles T. Hotchkiss, Jan. 24; "Song of the Northern Prairie," by Allen King, March 22, and "The Marsh — A Quiet Mystery," by Tom Sterling, April 25. All films will be shown in St. Joseph high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Season tickets are $6 for adults and $4 for students through high school. Tickets may be obtained at Sarett Nature Center, Benton Harbor; Badt's Drug Store, Coloma; Gillespie's Drug Store, St. Joseph; Craft and Trim, Village Square, Stevensville; Hall of Cards, Fairplain Plaza.

Benton Harbor, and Books Galore, St. Joseph.

Walter H. Berlet in his film, "West Side Story — Mexico to Alaska," follows the sun from south to north up the western coast of North America. As the changing seasons bring changes in wildlife populations and activities, viewers will see birds returning north from their winter stay in Mexico, otters and sea lions enjoying the summer waters off the California coast, and Kodiak bears fishing in Alaskan streams crowded with spawning salmon. As winter overtakes their warm-weather habitats, the birds turn southward to begin the cycle once more.

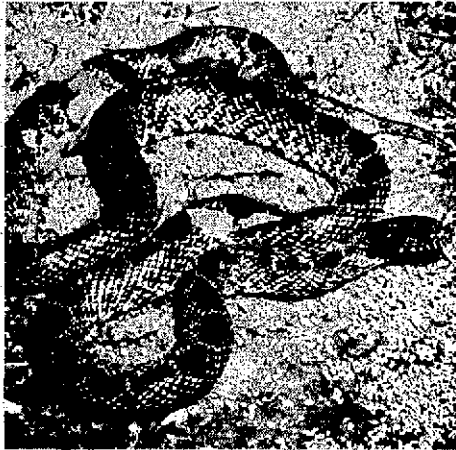

Jeanne and John Goodman spent a total of six years in Uganda which lies between high mountains east and west and is 4,000 feet above sea level. The Goodman's film, "Upcountry Uganda," is a diary of a country where elephants and mud wallows seem more familiar than modern cities and universities, where dust and green fields feel more "right" than industrial pollution and concrete. A rolling landscape of tropical East Africa, Uganda also has hippos, elephants, snakes, birds and a sense of an emerging world.

Charles T. Hotchkiss will present "Exploring Big Bend," a film of the southwestern United States, where such creatures as a Sonoran king snake and javelinas reside.

North Dakota is the principal locale of Allen King's film, "Song of the Northern Prairie." North Dakota is the core of the great northern prairie which spreads across north central United States and south central Canada. This prairie has long served as food source for both Indian and western man, yet, even though manipulated by man, it remains home to wildlife traditionally associated with the prairie. And its wetlands, situated on the central flyway, host thousands of migrating birds and are the breeding grounds for many water birds.

From the barren stillness of winter, with deer, coyote, and opossum searching for food, through the seasons, the marshes are discovered and richly appreciated in Tom Sterling's film, "The Marsh — A Quiet Mystery." There were once 127 million acres of wetlands in the United States. Little more than 50 per cent of these lands are now left. The value these wetlands have and the abundant wildlife they harbor were the causes of this work — an exploration of the marshes of Michigan, Utah, Oregon, and Ontario, Canada, and an extensive series of studies of their wildlife.

SONORAN KING SNAKE: The eye of a snake is protected by an immovable, transparent cap which covers it. While this cap serves and enhances the function of an eyelid, the eye beneath is as free to move as is the human eye. The Sonoran king snake above is an inhabitant of the Arizona desert which is featured in "Exploring Big Bend," an Audubon Wildlife Film presented in person by Charles T. Hotchkiss.

CHILD AND FAMILY SERVICES

Professional Counseling Available

A woman calls for counseling, and she is crying. She and her husband fight constantly; he is talking about leaving her.

A mother and father bring in their 14-year-old son for counseling because they have no control over him.

A man in his 40s calls in, he is depressed: "I have had the same job for 20 years, but I can't stand it."

A teen-age girl calls and wants to talk about her concern: "Sometimes I feel scared inside and I don't know why."

Child and Family Services of Southwestern Michigan, 2000 South State street, St. Joseph, is typical of the agencies offering services of several professional counselors.

One counselor, Ruth Fricke, has been with the agency since November, 1968. Mrs. Fricke holds a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and is certified as a social worker. Frank LaClair has a bachelor of arts degree from Oakland University and has completed work toward a master's of social work. LaClair's experience has been working with youth and he is certified as a social worker. Linda LaClair has her master's of social work degree from the University of Michigan and is a certified social worker. She has had experience at the Jackson Community Mental Health Services and the Family Group Homes for Youth. Lee Moss holds a master's of social work degree and functions as a casework supervisor and executive director of Child and Family Services. He has had over 14 years of experience in various agencies and is a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers. He is also a certified social worker and a certified marriage counselor in the state of Michigan.

All of the counselors on the staff of Child and Family Services are licensed by the State of Michigan to do individual and family counseling. They are trained, experienced, and sensitive in meeting the needs and concerns of individuals and families seeking help with a wide variety of the concerns of everyday living, according to Moss.

What is counseling? According to Mrs. Fricke, "Counseling is simply talking with someone who is trained to understand and help people. In family or individual counseling people

HELPS PEOPLE: Counseling by several professionals is one of the services offered by Child and Family Services of Michigan. According to Ruth Fricke, who has been with the agency since 1968, counseling is simply talking with someone who is trained to understand and help people. Although a fee is charged for each counseling session, the fee is based on a sliding scale according to a person's annual income, but for those unable to pay, the service is free. talk about their problems with a trained counselor in an attempt to improve communication skills, understand themselves and another.

"Many times bargaining or negotiation is called for as the counselor helps individuals clarify their special needs. Often a counselor gives advice aid in problem solving to parents having discipline problems with their children, or a couple who fight over the same issue again and again without arriving at a solution agreeable to both.

"Fortunately, many people are realizing that their problems are not 'shameful and secret' — that they are really only a symptom of a correctible condition. By recognizing this and taking prompt action they find that they are able to improve their condition through family and individual counseling."

A typical situation, reported by Child and Family Services, is that of Mrs. W and J, her 14-year-old son, who were referred to an agency by J's probation officer. After a couple of interviews it became clear J felt neglected by his mother, a divorced woman with five children who worked full time. Mrs. W felt harassed, tired and unable to cope with the pressures of raising five children alone. The children were driving her crazy with their constant fighting.

The counselor began sessions with the mother and all five children. At first the sessions seemed to be a free for all, but eventually the children were made to recognize and accept responsibility for more of their own behavior. They also started to understand each other's need for privacy in their small home and looked for ways to allow each person a little privacy.

Mother began to see she was not giving the children any attention when home. It was suggested to them that they make a point of having a time together each evening, and Mrs. W suggested what she called the "happy hour." Each evening she had all the children sit down for dinner, something they had never done. For one hour they discussed only happy experiences, plans or ideas. For the first time the family shared something besides complaints and arguing. The children had a chance to talk to mother and afterwards she could relax awhile by herself and unwind from a hard day of work.

Another situation was that of Mrs. A, a frightened young woman who came to the clinic complaining about her feelings of depression. She explained that she had really come because she had so many negative feelings about her two-year-old child. She was afraid of losing her temper with the child. The resulting guilt feelings were now causing more problems and even her marital relationship was affected.

The first step was to increase Mrs. A's feelings of self-worth. She felt guilt because she became pregnant before her marriage and was very religious. Immediately after marrying, she moved away from family and friends. She had always wanted to take piano lessons again but was afraid. With a little encouragement from the counselor, Mrs. A did resume her lessons. The feeling of accomplishment gave her the confidence she needed to begin to get out and make friends at her church.

Several sessions were held with both husband and wife as the couple began to take a close look at how each of their own actions contributed to their problems. Mrs. A complained about not getting out together but said no to her husband's suggestions, saying they had no money or he probably really didn't want to be with her. Her husband was feeding into her insecurity and bad feelings for the child by trying to over-compensate. He spent all his time with the child and none with his wife.

As they talked to each other, they made their expectations of each other clearer. Their fighting decreased and they learned to cooperate with each other, accepting one another's weaknesses. They expanded their outside interests individually, but made sure they had time for family activities, too.

According to Moss, executive director of the agency, anyone in the Twin Cities area in need of counseling service is eligible to receive it from Child and Family Services, which each year provides confidential help to hundreds of individuals and families.

Counseling is one of the services provided by the agency which offers a comprehensive family social service program encompassing: adoptive placements, foster care, problem pregnancy counseling, epilepsy counseling and a homemaker service. Although a fee is charged for each counseling session, the fee is based on a sliding scale according to a person's annual income, but for those unable to pay, the service is free. This is made possible as Child and Family Services receives funding through Blountland United Way. Also, the agency plans to offer group counseling services in the near future. Evening appointments are available. Further information may be secured by telephoning Child and Family Services of Michigan in St. Joseph.

Spending Less For Food Than For Transportation

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The average American family now spends more for transportation than it does for food, according to a new government survey.

Significantly contributing to that reversal of historic consumer spending patterns is the private automobile and related expenditures for auto financing, maintenance and fuel.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), an arm of the United States Department of Labor, sampled 20,000 families in a 1972-73 and found that 21.4 per cent of average total expenditures went for transportation, up from 15.2 per cent in 1960-61.

Private transportation's bite on the family budget rose from 13.7 per cent to 18.9 per cent during the 12-year period. The average family owned one car in 1960-61 and 1.3 autos — generally larger, more expensive models — in 1972-73. Public transportation outlays increased modestly from 1.5 per cent to 2.4 per cent.

Expenditures for food, in contrast, dropped from 24.4 per cent to 20.1 per cent in 1972-73. Food consumed at home claimed only 14 per cent of the total.

Housing's share of the average family's spending rose from 28.4 per cent to 31.4 per cent. The balance was consumed on clothing, medical care, recreation and miscellaneous expenditures.

Projecting those spending patterns through 1978, National Canners association economist Lawrence Van Meir calculated that the average family last year spent $3,493 on housing, $2,401 on transportation and $2,271 on food.

Van Meir estimated that the average family paid out $2,156 for the luxury of private transportation last year. Breaking down the food expenditures, Van Meir projected that the average family spent $1,587 for dining at home in 1976 and $684 for eating out.

NCA president Charles J. Carey, whose association represents manufacturers of more than 60 per cent of the nation's canned foods, said: "The survey clearly demonstrates that food industry efforts are paying off for consumers. In the canning industry, productivity per worker has increased an average of 4.4 per cent per year since 1961."

What's In A Name?

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) — "In 1837 when Mary Lyon, the founder of Mount Holyoke college, here was looking for a name for her new institution, a friend from nearby Amherst suggested 'Pangyanascan Seminary.'"

This Greek term for "all the powers of woman — physical, intellectual and moral," — never caught on, but it caught the attention of the press which laughingly reported the proposal. The unexpected publicity paid off.

Suddenly, Lyon's fledgling institution, which was based upon what was then considered the daring and revolutionary idea of higher education for women, became known in households all over New England. Then there was a burst of financial and moral support for the venture which a few months later was named for a nearby mountain — Mount Holyoke.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Her Prayers. Answered

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I saw a TV special on incest. I doubt that many people watched it. It was aired at 11:30 p.m. and incest is a subject most folks would rather not think about. The narrator said previous statistics have been proven wrong — that incest happens much more frequently than anyone had imagined.

I believe it because I went through that special hell with my own stepfather. I was ten when it began, and not

Anxiety Complex

I don't know what a new bike did for the kid who stole it from my son.

But I know what it is doing to me and I don't like it.

I find myself looking over my shoulder with suspicion into the eyes of every child who rides a brown Schwinn 10-speed and thinking if I stare at him long enough he will "break."

I find myself rehearsing speeches in the bathroom mirror that Pat O'Brien as an Irish priest gave to the prison inmates 20 years ago.

I accost perfect strangers in the supermarket and on buses and without so much as an introduction say, "My son had his bicycle stolen," and launch into the entire sordid story of how he got up at 4 a.m. every morning to deliver papers and how he now gets a hernia from carrying them on his back, etc.

But worst of all, I find myself guarding the new replacement bike like the contents of the Louvre. My husband compares it to the new baby anxiety complex where you get up five times a night to see if it is still where you left it.

"At least three times a day, I check the bike to see if anyone has been tampering with the tires, stolen the light, lifted the gears or swapped the back rack or the basket."

If there is no moon, I bring it bothering her when she got a steady boyfriend. Like me, she was lucky to get an understanding husband who helped her get over the emotional trauma.

The reason I am writing is to plead for more treatment centers to help those who are not as fortunate as we were. As of now, there is only one such center in the United States.

There are so many children and adults with vivid memories going through this awful nightmare. They need help, Ann. Uncommon, you say? She was my next-door neighbor. — We Prayed Together Without Even Knowing It.

Dear Friend: I saw that superb NBC special. In fact, it was inspired by my column.

I hope they will rerun it soon. More people need to be made aware of the problem. And yes, you are right about treatment centers. We need dozens more. Here's a project for PTAs all over the nation.

Generous Dentist

Dear Ann Landers: Since my father is a dentist who has always adjusted bills for "family," I'd like to comment on the letter critical of the young dentist who did not want to do free work for relatives.

First: Setting up a practice is very expensive and there is no way to pay for it except with money received for work done. The patients don't exactly start lining up at the door the first day.

Second: Every person who recently graduated from dental school will be incensed by the comment that they need to "experiment" on their patients.

South was so proud of his good spade suit that he overlooked his tremendous diamond support and merely bid four spades.

Of course, North must take some of the blame for missing the easy diamond slam. He didn't have to rebid in no-trump.

Still, four spades with a hundred honors is not a really bad result, but South compounded his crime and found a way to go down after West gave him a chance to misplay the hand.

East won the first trick with the jack of clubs and continued by cashing the ace and leading a third club. South ruffed with the jack and West didn't bother to overruff. He simply chucked his one diamond. Now South got greedy. He decided to go after an overtrick and led a diamond towards dummy. West ruffed and led a heart.

South was in dummy and was faced with a problem. Should he finesse in trumps? Real thought would have told him not to. If East held three trumps his distribution would have been 3-1-3-8 and West would have been dealt eight hearts, but South wasn't used to real thought. He took the trump finesse and managed to collect only nine tricks.

An Iowa reader held:

He wants to know what we would bid in fourth seat, with everyone vulnerable, after the bidding went: one heart-one spade (by partner) — four hearts.

We like to live dangerously, hate to shut out and would try four spades.

ANN LANDERS

It is insulting to the schools of dental medicine as well as to the dentists to assume that they are not qualified to make professional judgments.

My father had generous relatives and friends who insisted on paying for at least part of their work. They also "induced" everyone they knew what a conscientious young dentist he was!

After practicing dentistry for 37 years, my father still does free and "discount" work for relatives. If you want to compare his "gifts" over the years with what they gave him when he was a boy, it is obvious who gave more. — Proud Daughter, Niece, Granddaughter, Etc.

Dear Daughter: Every dentist who reads your letter will love you. And they should. You sound like a neat lady. Thanks for writing.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has inner ear problems. The doctor has diagnosed it as Meniere's disease. He is on Antivert and Hygrolon.

We would like to know if the medicine he is taking would have any effect on him because we would like to have another baby. Does this medicine have any effect on the sperm?

DEAR READER — That is a good question. There is surprisingly little information on the effects of various medicines on men as potential fathers. There is quite a bit more information on women. There is nothing to indicate either medicine would have any adverse effect in this regard on your husband.

Antivert should NOT be used by a woman who is pregnant or who may become pregnant. It has been shown to cause birth defects in pregnant rats. Several of the antihistamines such as Antivert that are used to prevent motion sickness or dizziness should not be used in these women. The changes, if any, would occur during the development process and there are no studies that implicate the use of such medications in men as a factor in birth defects.

Hygrolon is a diuretic used to flush out salt and water. Diuretics should not be used in pregnant women unless there is a good medical indication. The drug does pass through the placenta and affects the baby. This may not be as a birth defect but rather as a disturbance in chemical balance, jaundice of the baby and possibly some changes in blood clotting mechanisms.

Diuretics also appear in the mother's milk. A nursing mother should not take diuretics. If she has to take them for a medical reason she should stop nursing the baby.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has congestive heart failure due to a leaky valve. He is under the care of an excellent physician who has him on a low sodium diet and medicines.

Occasionally he becomes short of breath due to overexertion. Would you please explain what takes place to him physically when this happens?

DEAR READER — Normally the left side of the heart fails first. The leaky valve you speak of is no doubt in the left side of his heart.

When the heart is called upon to work harder than it can it fails to pump enough blood through the left side of the heart and the blood backs up in the lungs.

The excess blood in the lungs causes fluid to leak out of the small blood vessels into the tiny air sacs of the lungs. As the air sacs fill with fluid the lungs are no longer efficient in exchanging air. The person becomes breathless. Sometimes this is almost like an asthmatic response giving rise to the medical term, "cardiac asthma."

As soon as the left heart catches up with its workload and pumps out the excess blood the lungs clear and breathing returns to normal. The breathlessness in your husband's case is an indication that he has exceeded the work capacity of his heart with its leaky valve. In selected cases leaky heart valves can be replaced.

Readers who want information on the common type of heart disease can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

'Seat Belt Blitz' Costing $1.5 Million

By MARTY HAIR
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — With Uncle Sam breathing down their necks on the passive restraint issue, automakers are spending $1.5 million to tell the public why it should use old-fashioned seat belts.

The program begins in Michigan's major cities Monday, five days after General Motors announced it will offer automatic safety belts as options on some 1979 models and air bags on full-size cars two years later.

Despite strong lobbying by the auto companies, the Department of Transportation is requiring passive restraints to be phased in during the 1982-84 model years. Secretary Brock Adams says the use of air bags could save 9,000 lives annually.

The seat belt push comes from Motorists Information,

Inc., a Detroit-based non-profit corporation organized and financed by GM, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors.

They are spending $1.5 million on a blitz of radio and TV spots, posters, bumper stickers to tell Michigan residents why they should buckle up. The main motto is "Somebody Needs You."

The campaign will last until November, when organizers hope the federal government will see its merit for the entire country and either take it over or share its cost.

Backers claim that in a pilot campaign in western Michigan last spring, the number of people who reported they usually wore seat belts went from 29 per cent before to 41 per cent afterwards.

But a study paid for by the insurance industry disputes those figures, and one researcher there says no campaign can persuade the public to wear seat belts.

Detroit remains optimistic. "We are not doing this to avoid passive restraint systems or automatic seat belts," said Sydney Terry, a Chrysler vice president who is chairman of Motorists Information (MI). He added Thursday that it "just happened" that the program starts soon after GM's announcement and two months after Adams' air bag order.

"We would like an effective restraint system that would require no action on the part of the driver. All passive systems we know anything about have deficiencies," Terry said Thursday.

The dozen radio and TV ads MI previewed did not mention other auto safety systems, such as airbags or automatic seat belts.

He said even if the passive restraint systems were installed on schedule and do the job, 47,000 lives would be lost before then and those lives could be saved with seat belts.

Carter's Pick Due For Surgery

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Frank Johnson Jr., selected last week by President Carter to become FBI director, will undergo surgery today at Methodist Hospital in Houston for a suspected blocked blood vessel in the stomach. Tom Fourqurean, a hospital official, confirmed by telephone that Johnson, 58, had been admitted Thursday but refused to comment on the nature of his illness. The judge's sister-in-law, Mrs. Jimmy Johnson, said here that the judge was to undergo surgery for an aneurism located in the stomach area.

Heart specialist Dr. Michael DeBakey was to perform the operation, scheduled for 7:30 a.m. CDT Friday, she said. Mrs. Johnson said Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell knew of Johnson's health problem last Wednesday when he announced Johnson's appointment to succeed Clarence Kelley as FBI director. Bell "still wants F.M. (Johnson) to take the job," she added. Mrs. Johnson said her brother-in-law had known about the "small knot" in his abdomen for "some time." She said it started bothering him during a recent fishing trip.

Dowagiac Hospital Asks 'Timely' Pledge Payments

DOWAGIAC — A spokesman for Lee Memorial hospital here has asked that pledges made towards a hospital expansion project be paid on a "timely basis" so construction bills can be met.

John W. Nushbaum, hospital administrator, said it is anticipated that all pledges will be paid on schedule, but he stressed that because of inflation and construction progress, the hospital needs the money to meet its bills for the $3.7 million project.

In October, 1974, the hospital launched a fund drive to raise $750,000 needed to help finance construction.

Nine months later, it topped the goal with fund pledges totaling $775,910.

The administrator said that as of yesterday, $450,703 of those pledges had been paid.

Of the pledges, he said, $480,000 was pledged by major corporations; $109,000 was pledged by the doctors, employees, board of trustees and ladies auxiliary at the hospital; and the remaining $147,000 was pledged by the community at large.

More than 1,300 separate donations and pledges were recorded, Nushbaum said.

He said the ground floor of the building addition should be ready for use by the end of September, with the first floor ready in November and the second floor completed by January.

Besides the addition, part of the project also includes renovation of parts of the existing hospital.

Sadie's Country-Bound

TROY, Mich. (AP) — A 125-pound black bear named Sadie is bound for the countryside. Her suburban owners have bowed to pressure from local officials and agreed to give up the pet. "It was a tough decision for us to make," Mrs. Charles Jackson said Thursday after she and her husband decided not to fight the Troy Animal Control Board. The Jacksons acquired Sadie as a cub five years ago and kept the bear in a six-foot-high fenced pen in the backyard. But they didn't have a permit and police refused to issue one. City officials called Sadie "dangerous to society." They noted the Jacksons' suburban Detroit home is near an elementary school. Mrs. Jackson said they will give Sadie to someone with a "nice home in the country."

BH Man Asks Hearing On 1974 Robbery Count

A Benton Harbor man demanded examination in Berrien Fifth District court yesterday on a charge of armed robbery in 1974 at C&T Cleaners, 396 East Main street, Benton Harbor.

Melvin Douglas, 23, 972 Pavone street, is charged with the robbery and lodged in the Berrien county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond. A clerk was held up with a pistol and robbed of $40 at C&T Cleaners in December, 1974.

Steve Allan Sprinkle, 19, and Larry D. Couch, 21, both of Juliet, Ill., were bound over to Circuit court after hearings in District court. The two men are jailed in lieu of $2,000 bond each, charged with breaking and entering the Golden Door restaurant in New Buffalo township on Aug. 17.

In other cases yesterday, 11 people were sentenced.

Elsie Bromley, 59, Weechee road, New Troy, was sentenced by Judge Leo K. Cook to one year probation with a requirement that she continue psychiatric treatment. She had pleaded guilty to simple assault — pointing an unloaded .22-caliber rifle at State Trooper William Cahill July 9 when he responded to a complaint at the Bromley residence.

Russell Bergemann, 58, Stevensville, was sentenced to pay fine and costs of $65 for assault and battery against Karl Lilly on July 15.

Addie Kyles, 25, of 878 Monroe street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to pay $35 for assault and battery against Patricia Marshall, Benton Harbor, Aug. 4.

Duane Kelly, 18, 1375 Monroe street, Benton township, and Robert Lee Jones, 22, 1724 Plympton avenue, Benton township, were both sentenced to pay $35 for disorderly conduct — indecent language in public — on Aug. 24.

Elizabeth Powell, 53, Grand Junction, was sentenced to pay $125 for petty larceny for taking a box of Bufferin from K-mart in Benton Harbor Aug. 24.

Ross Charles, 60, Elgin, Ill., was sentenced to pay $200 for careless carrying of a firearm — an unlicensed pistol in his car — reduced from an original charge of carrying a concealed weapon Aug. 13.

Richard A. Martin, 28, 318 Hignman Park road, Benton township, was sentenced to pay $75 for petty larceny — a hot water heater from Ace Plumbing company, in St. Joseph on Feb. 4.

Gary Lynn Flakes, 19, 1007 Boss avenue, Benton Harbor, received a 60-day sentence for entering without permission.

Robert Gowder, 72, of Bridgman, was sentenced to $200 fine and costs for driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Jeffrey Dumdel, 18, 508 Whittlessey avenue, St. Joseph, was sentenced to pay $102 for impaired driving, reduced from driving under the influence of intoxicants.

Motor Home Rolls; 1 Dies

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — A 28-year-old German student is dead of injuries suffered when he was crushed by a motor home as he worked underneath it. State police said Gerlud Kraft of Ruesselheimer, West Germany, was killed Thursday afternoon while he and his wife were stopped for gasoline along Interstate 94 near here. The motor home would not start after it was filled with gasoline, and Kraft climbed underneath with a screwdriver to tinker with wires, police said. The vehicle started and rolled backward over Kraft. Kraft was a student at the General Motors Institute in Sterling Heights, Mich., an engineering college.

AMC May Get Out Of Hole This Year

By MARTY HAIR
Associated Press Writer

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — American Motors Corp., which lost $46 million last year, will break even or show a small profit for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, says its chairman.

"What that means is a $50 million turnaround of our business," Roy Chapin Jr. said Thursday at a news conference. He said car sales this year are at "rock bottom" and account for only half its business. AMC estimates it will sell 206,000 cars in the 1977 model year, down 21 per cent from the 261,000 it sold in 1976. Chapin estimated 1977-model production at 250,000.

While AMC's car sales have been slumping, particularly since June, its Jeep and AM General sales have been thriving. Chapin said 1977-model sales of Jeeps worldwide will be about 150,000, with 110,000 of them in the United States. He said AM General has a backlog of orders worth nearly $700 million. New business, he said, gained more than $600 million in fiscal 1977. AM General makes buses and heavy-duty vehicles.

He said AMC would "intensely pursue" both markets. But Chapin again denied reports that AMC would drop its car lines and concentrate on Jeeps and AM General's products. "Some observers," and some editors, have said American Motors should get out of the passenger car business," he said. "I'm tired of this kind of advice. There is no decision to make. The fact is, it's made — and always was. We're in the auto business to stay and grow."

Record U.S. Auto Sales Seen For '78

DETROIT (AP) — Import sales will be down and the domestic auto industry will set an all-time record by selling more than 15.5 million 1978-model cars and trucks in the United States, predicts the head of General Motors Corp.

Thomas Murphy's forecast Thursday predicted sales of 11.75 million passenger cars and 3.75 million trucks.

The previous record, set in the 1973 model year, was 14.9 million — 11.8 million cars and 3.1 million trucks.

Murphy's predictions reflect an anticipated continuation of the strong sales trends of this year. An industry analyst called them "very reasonable."

The GM chairman also revised upward his predictions for current model-year sales by 100,000 units to 14.6 million, including imports. That includes 3.5 million trucks, a record, and 11.1 million cars, the second-highest ever. Of those 1977-model vehicles, a record 6.7 million will be GM cars and trucks, he said.

"We are confident that the overall economy will remain healthy, and that consumers will continue to benefit from many of the same factors that laid the groundwork for the high level of demand for new cars and trucks evidenced in the 1977 model year," Murphy said.

"The economy is in the midst of a balanced expansion," he added. "All of the principal components of real GNP, except the foreign trade account, are on upward trends."

"Moreover, there is no convincing evidence of the presence of the type of excesses that could presage a downturn."

An analyst said he thought the imports' share of the market may fall slightly in 1978.

"I don't think they can hold," he said. Imports have been running about 1.8 million units a year since 1970, he said.

Murphy said GM employment worldwide is expected to exceed the record 811,000 of 1973. Payroll also will be at an all-time high, eclipsing the record of $12.9 billion of 1976.

GM's 1977 full-sized cars did especially well in 1977, Murphy said. Those models were "downsized" a year ago and the leaner, lighter cars had improved fuel economy over their 1976 counterparts. He said sales records will be established for 1977 Oldsmobile and Cadillac models. Chevrolet and GMC Truck & Coach divisions have set records for the second year in a row, Murphy said.

He admitted that the "demand for certain new cars and light-duty trucks exceeded available supplies at times" in 1977, and said production schedules are being shifted to meet demand.

Most GM car and truck assembly plants will run on two shifts with at least eight hours a shift in the new model year, he said. Construction has begun again at a new assembly plant at Oklahoma City and one may be built in Shreveport, La. Other new plants are being built in Rochester, N.Y., Wichita Falls, Tex. and Athens, Ala., he said.

In Michigan, expansion or modernization projects are underway at Oldsmobile and Fisher Body plant in Lansing; AC Spark Plug division in Flint; Chevrolet nodular iron foundry in Saginaw; and Hydra-matic in Ypsilanti. GM is buying a plant in Three Rivers to be operated by Hydra-matic.

Going Back Today In History

Today is Friday, Aug. 26, the 288th day of 1977. There are 127 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1920, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution went into effect, giving women the same voting rights as men.

On this date: In 1316, artillery was said to have been used for the first time, in the Battle of Crecy in northern France.

In 1765, Massachusetts Gov. Thomas Hutchinson was accused of favoring the British Stamp Act, and a mob sacked his Boston home.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler demanded that France turn over the Saar region to Germany.

In 1937, Japan blockaded Chinese shipping.

In 1964, student and Buddhist riots in South Vietnam forced the resignation of the government of Premier Nguyen Khanh.

In 1974, aviation pioneer Charles Lindbergh died of cancer at the age of 72. Ten years ago: Communists attempting to sabotage an election in South Vietnam destroyed a bus a few miles from a presidential campaign rally, killing 22 people.

Five years ago: The 20th Summer Olympics opened in Munich, Germany.

One year ago: Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands resigned from most of his military and business posts after a Dutch government commission criticized his relationship with the Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Today's birthday: General Maxwell Taylor is 78 years old. Thought for today: "The man who lives only by hope will die with despair." — an Italian proverb.

WOOD CHIPS A PLENTY: Wood is slowly making a comeback in boilers of American industry and Norval Morey of Winn, Mich., wants to be prepared. ## Stories Of Her Parties Exaggerated, Suzi Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Suzi Park Thomson says she gave parties for her friends in Congress and got help washing dishes from her guests. But she denies knowing about alleged South Korean attempts to buy influence in Congress.

The Korean-born Ms. Thomson said Thursday she naturally associated with people who are the focus of a House influence-peddling investigation. She said she hosted parties for congressmen and U.S. and Korean officials, including a reputed Korean Central Intelligence Agency station chief, Gen. Kim Yung Ilwan.

Speaking with reporters after a closed session with House ethics committee investigators, the former secretary to retired House Speaker Carl Albert said she did not know the Korean general was with the CIA. She said she never was involved with the CIA, and said she invited the general to parties only "because I liked him."

"You exaggerate my parties," she said. "I cooked and my guests washed dishes."

However, she and her lawyer, Philip Hirschkop, said she did give five large parties as well as the small ones.

Ms. Thomson, who prefers that designation, answered questions from House investigators for nearly five hours under threat of contempt of Congress action.

She had insisted twice before on answering questions only in public, saying she was afraid her closed-door answers would be leaked and distorted against her. But the committee threatened her with the contempt action on Wednesday.

Mrs. Thomson said she gave parties entirely on her own, not at the urging of any South Koreans, and said no South Koreans paid for them.

She said she knew both Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park, a central figure in the investigation, and former Korean Ambassador Kim Dong Ju. But she denied knowing about "cash" contributions to present and former congressmen have acknowledged getting from them.

Her lawyer said Ms. Thomson's relationship with Park was "arm's length" — she went to three of his large parties but no small ones — and that she sometimes helped the ambassador's wife entertain.

The former Capitol Hill secretary said Park showed up in Korea to meet congressmen with whom she was traveling as an aide once or twice but said she did not know why.

He said her five large parties included birthday parties for Albert and Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., and a Korean New Year party.

She said Addabbo and Rep.

Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., with whom she had a love affair, are under investigation for no reason other than that they were friends of hers.

"They had nothing to do with South Koreans," she said.

Hirschkop said Ms. Thomson's testimony to the House investigators was basically the same as her testimony before a federal grand jury, but more detailed. He said the grand jury, conducting its own Korean investigation, "seemed to have a prurient interest in her personal life that wasn't present today."

Hirschkop said Mrs. Thomson did not ask the House committee for immunity from prosecution. He said she received immunity for her grand jury testimony although she did not ask for it.

Old-Fashioned Image Fades Wood Makes Comeback As Fuel

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

Wood, which once heated every home, is slowly making a comeback in the boilers of American industry.

Faced with soaring prices for natural gas and oil and tighter restrictions on the use of coal, some companies are eyeing wooden pallets and packing crates, residues from sawmills, and forests' dead and crippled trees as new fuel sources.

Burning wood is older than civilization. It's acquired an old-fashioned image in this century, however, even though paper and sawmills have run on it for years, drawing energy from their wastes.

Only lately have other industries considered it. And only recently has anyone suggested that forests — full of twisted, rotting and stunted trees that one company official called the "hair, guts and feathers" of the forest — can be harvested for energy.

Just a few non-wood-product companies are burning wood now, but hundreds are considering it, energy consulting firms say.

Those who believe in it say it's only a matter of time — and another cold winter like the last — before more industries catch on.

"What do you think a Ohio subdivision would have paid to have a wood-burning plant last winter?" asks Traverse City, Mich., broadcaster Les Biederman, whose statewide campaign for wood energy has pricked the imaginations of several Michigan industries.

"All we have to do is wait a little while as the cost of oil and natural gas goes up. I get to be a little bit more right each day," Biederman says.

Part of wood's attraction is its cost in heavily wooded states such as Michigan, Oregon, Washington, and much of New England. There, wood is half as expensive as coal and two-thirds less expensive than oil.

Clearing forests of dead or unmarketable wood lets quality trees grow faster and better, proponents say, transforming forests from "jungles" to "parks." They claim environmentalists have no objections to the idea, either, as long as some areas are left as is.

Some industries also feel they can depend on wood more than on supplies of other fuels.

Consumers Power Co., which provides electricity to 1.2 million Michigan customers, has concluded enough wood exists in the state to fire a generating plant. It's now pondering whether to build one.

"As you look at the future and find yourself limited to coal and uranium, — with all the problems we see in licensing both of those — we thought it only reasonable to look at wood, since Michigan's got a lot of trees," said Consumers President John D. Selby.

Dow-Corning Co. of Midland, Mich., makes silicone products like artificial finger joints. It's seeking federal funds to help build a wood-burning generator "so we're energy independent from other sources," said William D. Belis, an engineering manager. Otherwise, he said, "We'd be fighting the same kinds of battles as everyone else who's using oil or gas."

General Motors Corp., the nation's biggest automaker, says it's still too costly to haul wood from the forests, but boilers at three GM plants are ready to burn it when the price is right.

Last year, GM used chopped up wood pallets and scraps, along with other fuels, to run its Pontiac, Mich., truck assembly plant.

In Alexander City, Ala., the Russell Manufacturing Corp. recently began burning wood at its athletic apparel manufacturing plant and estimates $1 million in savings annually.

Vermont officials are thinking of using wood to heat the state's mental hospital, and small utilities in various states are mixing wood with coal, experimenting and trying to save money.

Although some call it a conservative figure, the U.S. Forest Service estimates the nation's forests contain the equivalent of a billion tons of dry, unmarketable wood.

Burning that waste wood could create the same amount of energy as 10 billion barrels of oil — about twice what the nation used in 1976.

While the wood is relatively inexpensive — $7 to $8 per ton — the problems and extra costs come in handling and hauling it.

Much of the available wood is in wilderness areas and would cost too much to get and transport. Wood chips, are also bulkier than other fuels — boosting hauling costs.

"When we're generating it in our own plant, wood's economical," says Donald Van Zile of GM. "But when we must go out and buy it, haul it, load it, unload it, chip it up — so far we haven't been able to make the economics work."

It sounds so attractive and people say, "Why aren't you doing it?" But I think they're ignoring the economics. When things become economic, people do 'em. That's all that's holding us up," he said.

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) is reviewing grant proposals from six U.S. firms that say they can build a plant and haul 1,000 tons of wood a day to run it economically.

The technology of burning wood is nothing new, says Nella Del'Gobbo of ERDA. "What we're trying to prove to people is that we can, in fact, pull out a quantity of wood from the forest at a reasonable price to support a (generating) facility," he says.

In Winn, Mich., Norval Morey, a former lumberjack, says that's entirely possible. He wants to prove it by building a 10-megawatt generating plant fueled entirely with wood chips from nearby forests.

Morey's firm, Morebark Industries, Inc., produces machinery to clip down trees like a mower cuts grass, then feed them into another contraption that spits out close to two tons of chips per minute.

Niles Area JA Gets Gift

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau
NILES — Western Electric Co. gave the Four Flags area Junior Achievement program a

"pre-season" boost yesterday with a gift of $500.
In a presentation at the company's material management center, located west of Niles on US-12, the firm gave the money to the program which serves teens in southern Berrien county.

The ceremony was one of the program's first activities as it prepares for a new JA year. Later this month, and again in September, recruits will be sought at several high schools for the program designed to give young people first hand experience in the free enterprise system.

The actual program gets underway Oct. 3-5, as the achievers begin meeting at their Buchanan headquarters.

Other highlights of the year include election of JA officers, Oct. 17-19; National JA week, Jan. 16-20; and the annual Future Unlimited banquet, May 11.

On hand for the presentation yesterday were Western Electric representatives Donald Fleming, manager of the center, and George Slazyk, deputy chief of personnel and an advisor for a JA company this year. Representing the JA program were Richard Dougherty, president of the Four Flags area JA board of directors, and John Nichols, the salesman of the year last year and a member of a Western Electric-sponsored company.

Again this year, Western Electric will sponsor one of the JA companies. Other sponsors named were Clark Equipment Co., corporate offices; Clark's axle division; and Clark's treasury division; Greater Niles Jaycees; First National Bank of

Firm Buys 3.7-Acre Site For $10 Million Niles Mall

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau
NILES — City officials here yesterday sold a 3.7-acre parcel of land to a Connecticut firm, but learned they will have to wait to find out what shape a proposed $10 million shopping mall to be built on the land will take.

In a brief ceremony at city hall, Niles Mayor Robert Woodbridge and Clerk Donna Fout signed a deed selling the former urban renewal lot to Capital Investing Corp. (CIC), Wallingford, Conn.

George Jorgensen, president of CIC, turned over a $68,000 check to the city as final payment for the land, a triangle bounded by Second and Main streets and the St. Joseph river.

But as he had done at an Aug. 8 meeting of the Niles city council, Jorgensen declined to answer questions about what was planned for the development.

Total purchase price for the land was $85,000. CIC had already paid the city $17,000, in the form of two different $8,500 six-month options on the vacant property.

When it obtained its initial six-month option about one year ago from the city council, CIC announced plans for a $10 million shopping mall and business and professional office building.

Tentatively dubbed "Niles Center," the plans included an underground parking garage, a seven-story office building and a shopping mall to be anchored by one large retail store and several smaller ones.

But since that time, city officials have learned that Jorgensen and CIC were considering possible changes in the project, including seeking additional property for more parking spaces.

At the Aug. 8 meeting, Jorgensen did tell councilmen that there might be some changes in the project, but that the concept of an enclosed mall would stand. He did not, however, answer questions about what specifically was planned.

Jorgensen said yesterday that he planned to return in a "couple of weeks" to Niles and discuss the project with city officials. He said attempts were also being made to work out an agreement to continue to allow the city to use the lot for various functions until construction begins.

Woodbridge said after the signing that the deed for the property included several stipulations, including a provision that contracts for the project be let within one year. Also, the deed stipulates that the project have at least 100,000 square feet of space and that it be of a commercial-retail or commercial-business nature.

Hearing Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has moved to make sure that the millions of people who buy hearing aids actually need them and will benefit from them.

A Food and Drug Administration regulation, which went into effect Thursday, requires a doctor's examination before a hearing aid can be purchased. Previously hearing aids could be bought freely over the counter.

U.S. To Limit Use Of DBCP

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — The federal government will clamp down next week on use of a potent pesticide linked to sterility among male workers who helped manufacture the product at Dow Chemical Co.

The chemical company, headquartered in Midland, Mich., is attempting to pull the product off the market. Dow mailed letters Thursday to its 250 distributors around the world, urging them to return supplies of DBCP, or dibromochloropropane, to the company until it can figure out what went wrong.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the U.S. Labor Department said it would issue temporary emergency standards for the chemical to limit the public's exposure. The labor department urged chemical companies to protect workers who use it.

Federal officials fell short of banning the sale of pesticides containing DBCP, however, as at least one consumer group had asked.

Dow officials said their action was just a precaution, even though there is no evidence the chemical, marketed as Fumazone, poses a hazard to farmers who handle it only occasionally.

It is used mainly by fruit farmers in California and Hawaii and soybean farmers in the Midwest to kill microscopic worms that nibble roots and stunt crops.

The federal action will temporarily reduce the amount of DBCP that can be included in pesticides that use it as a base. That standard will be in effect while data on the pesticide is reviewed and a permanent standard is set. That could take six months to a year.

The labor department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration also urged pesticide processors who use DBCP to reduce airborne concentrations of the chemical as much as possible and to test workers for adverse effects.

Dow and Shell Oil Co., the only other domestic producer of DBCP, both halted production of the pesticide after tests on workers at Dow's Magnolia, Ark., plant showed several with abnormally low sperm counts or no sperm at all.

Further tests on 75 workers showed half with sterility problems. Ten workers who handled Dow-produced DBCP at a Lathrup, Calif., processing plant also showed no sperm or extremely low levels.

Tests by the National Cancer Institute and Dow also showed DBCP caused stomach cancer in rats and mammary tumors in the female rodents. Dow says it has no evidence of ill health among women employees who handled DBCP, however.

Besides Fumazone, pesticides containing DBCP also are marketed under the brand names CHA-KEM-CO, Garden Fame, Green Light, and Nemagon Soil Fumigant, among others.

Dow officials said the liquid pesticide breaks down within weeks after being sprayed, with little risk to rural water supplies.

pressure were inadequate. "At this time, we really do not know what has occurred," said Eloy Blair, director of environmental and health research. "Our standards are specifically written to stress no contact (with DBCP). But obviously workers were exposed somehow. We're trying to figure out how."

Tests will begin soon, perhaps this week, on hundreds of Midland residents who worked with the chemical when it was produced here from 1957 to 1975, Dow officials said. They also said tests would be done to see if the sterility is permanent or temporary.

Blair said he did not expect to find widespread sterility among Midland workers. "Having spent 20 to 25 years here myself, there doesn't appear to be any lack of children being born in that section of the (Dow) Michigan division," he said.

Curb Troopers, Lawmaker Says

MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan State Police would be turned into a highway patrol limited to enforcing traffic laws, if state Sen. David Holmes gets his way.

The Detroit Democrat, charging the state police with "empire building," wants the agency dismantled and most of its duties given to other departments.

While the proposal seems to have little chance for success in the state legislature, it does mirror concerns expressed recently by some lawmakers that the troopers are grabbing too much power away from local law enforcement agencies.

"The citizens of Michigan better wake up — they are headed for a police state," Holmes declared at a news conference Thursday. He urged a greater role for county sheriffs and city police.

Which informed of Holmes' proposal, Gov. William Milliken responded: "Is he serious? It just doesn't make any sense." Then he added: "To dismantle one of the most effective agencies of state government and one of the best police forces in the country and scatter it to the winds is hardly in the public interest."

State police officials had no immediate comment. Holmes said he has not discussed his plan in detail with other lawmakers.

Holmes is the chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on state police, which handles the agency's budget each year. He supported a House bill to replace state police on Detroit freeways, with Wayne County sheriff's deputies, but was defeated by the full Senate.

The bill is now in a conference committee, but Milliken and Democratic leaders have agreed to retain the trooper patrols in Detroit and extend them to other city freeways. Some extra funding would be provided sheriff's departments.

Part of the agreement calls for a special committee to examine the proper roles of the state police and local agencies. But Holmes argues the troopers' current role is not rational or efficient.

"A politically sound solution will thwart empire building, and will help insure the civil liberties and right to accountability from law enforcement to the people of Michigan by enhancing local control of law enforcement," he said.

Saying the state police have too broad powers, Holmes accused the agency also of trying to take over special law enforcement work done by the Liquor Control Commission, Department of Licensing and Regulation and Department of Natural Resources. He said state troopers are filling roles intended for sheriff's departments in rural Michigan.

TIMELY ADVICE: Since one million youngsters will be returning to classes this September by school bus, safety patroller Frank Audia of Dearborn urges motorists to be extra alert. When school buses are boarding or unloading children, such as the three students shown here, Automobile Club of Michigan reminds motorists to stop at least 10 feet in front or in back of the bus. During the 1976-77 school year in Michigan, five youngsters died in bus-related accidents, two more than the previous year, and 72 school-aged pedestrians were killed.

Fact And Fiction Sifted By 'Sex School' Probers

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Investigators are trying to sort fact from fiction as they read the diaries of a 34-year-old man accused of running a sex school for children.

The diaries of Wayne Thomas Heacock list movie stars and names that may have been taken from the telephone directory, investigators said Thursday.

"We don't know what is real and what is fantasy yet," said Lt. Carl Matheny of the Oakland County sheriff's office. "Most of this is the secret life he led with the kids."

Matheny said more than 200 persons were named in the detailed notebooks kept by Heacock, who lives in Pontiac. The alleged child molester is being held under $125,000 bond on a five-count charge of criminal sexual conduct. A preliminary exam is set for Sept. 6 before Pontiac District Judge James Stett.

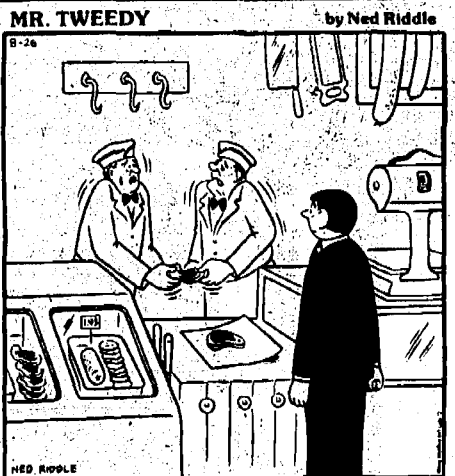

The charge against Heacock stemmed from his alleged relations with a 9-year-old boy, but investigators are sorting through information gathered from the diaries, tapes, movies and other documents found in his house.

Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson told reporters references in Heacock's diaries date back to 1957.

Sheriff Johannes Spreen called a news conference Thursday to complain, without naming Patterson, about the release of information in the case. He said the publicity could jeopardize the case.

"The people of this state may be the real losers if we lost this case because of improvident remarks by anyone," Spreen said.

Spreen, a Democrat, and Patterson, a Republican, frequently have feuded in the past over several law enforcement matters.

"OUR SCALE IS BROKEN. WE'RE HAVING TO GUESS HOW MUCH THESE CUTS WEIGH."

Renewed Safety Necessary School Bus Season Nears

Even though school buses have proven to be a reliable and safe method of travel, the traffic safety dangers involved in transporting one million students 125 million miles this school year in Michigan are considerable, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Since school-aged children are unpredictable and impulsive, it is important that motorists be extra alert, especially for the 160,000 students starting kindergarten this September," said Arthur C. Gibson, Auto Club's safety and traffic engineering manager.

"About 40 percent of the state's 2.5-million students in grades kindergarten through 12 ride buses to class," pointed out Gibson, who urged motorists, including school bus drivers, to drive cautiously and reduce their speed in school areas.

"It is essential that those three groups take the necessary safety steps to help Michigan cut down on traffic deaths and injuries involving school-aged children," Gibson stated.

In the 1976-77 school year, five youngsters lost their lives in bus-related accidents, an increase of two deaths over the previous year.

Another 72 school-aged pedestrians (aged 5 to 14 years) were killed last year — many of them while walking to and from school.

"Many of these deaths occurred because students were unaware of the danger of crossing streets to and from school and because motorists were inattentive or driving too fast for conditions," Gibson explained.

Auto Club warned that rear-end collisions occur too frequently because drivers realize too late that vehicles in front of them have stopped for school buses.

"The presence of a school bus should be a warning to motorists that traffic may come to a stop and they should be prepared to take similar action," Gibson said.

He recalled one tragic accident in which a 6-year-old youngster was killed last year when he crossed in front of a school bus and was struck by a car that failed to stop for the flashing red lights of the bus.

Auto Club suggests that parents teach children these simple rules for riding the bus or walking to school:

1. Walk only on the sidewalk. If there is none, walk facing traffic on the shoulder of the road.
2. Watch for turning cars and never cross between parked vehicles.
3. Leave home in plenty of time to arrive at the bus stop and stay well off the roadway while waiting to be picked up.
4. Remain seated while the bus is moving and keep hands and arms inside at all times.
5. After leaving the bus, walk at least 10 steps ahead of it before crossing the road, waiting for the driver to signal it is safe. Never cross at the back of the bus.

Motorists are reminded to be extra cautious when seeing a bus in the distance since children running to catch it sometimes forget to look before crossing roadways. Drivers also should stop at least 10 feet in front or in back of a bus when it is picking up or dropping off children on any road without barriers or dividers between lanes. That is a state law.

MID-MICHIGAN TOUR: This 107-mile Mid-Michigan bicycle tour includes first-hand look at Indian reservation, two state forests, scenic rivers and one of state's most picturesque college campuses.

107 MILES OF MID-MICHIGAN ADVENTURE Bike Tour Includes Indian Reservation

Bicyclists taking a 107-mile mid-Michigan adventure can tour an Indian reservation, view wildlife along state forest hiking trails, stroll through a charming college campus or sunbathe on a beautiful sandy beach, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

The route linking Mount Pleasant, Clare and the Midland area includes gently rolling terrain and flat farmlands dotted with scenic lakes and rivers, plus interesting tourism attractions.

The most heavily traveled sections take bikers through the business districts of St. Louis, Mount Pleasant and Clare.

Motels are available at all but the smallest cities and villages, and there are private campgrounds along the way. Gladwin State Park is located just north of the route near M-18. Gourmets will find a varied selection of fine restaurants.

The 30-mile section from Alma to Clare is the most interesting portion of the trip with a trio of top tourism attractions. The remaining 77-mile stretch is the most scenic, particularly from the Tittabawassee River State Forest to St. Louis.

At Mount Pleasant, Central Michigan University's campus of 18,000 students can be viewed by walking or bicycling, with grassy areas providing a good spot for a rest break and picnic lunch.

The Isabella Indian Reservation isn't included on the actual bicycle route, but it is only a five-mile side trip along eastbound M-20 and southbound Leaton road. The 450-acre reservation has paved roads throughout the area for easy access, a 63-site modern campground with swimming pool and a tribal center open weekdays.

The reservation's approximately 300 residents mostly are from the Saginaw Chippewa tribe.

Bikers can resume their trip along Mission road and leave Mount Pleasant for the flat farmlands of northern Isabella and southern Clare counties. Several Centennial farms are situated along this roadway, which changes to Clare road in Clare County.

Once reaching Clare, bikers are greeted by the famed Doherty Hotel. This 54-year-old

Four miles north of Clare, cyclists turn right onto Beaver road, cross the Tobacco River once again at Beaver and then follow southbound M-30 to Edenville, where cross points for persons interested in hiking. There is a 22-site rustic campground at the edge of Tittabawassee, about seven miles south of Edenville.

Cyclists must follow a snake-like course from M-30 via Curtis, River, Adams, Lake Sanford and Burns roads before reaching West River Road and continuing south to reach Sanford Lake Park, one-half mile south of US-10. The park has a nice beach area, picnic tables and boat-launching facilities.

Veterans Memorial Park, about two miles south of the Sanford Lake facility, can be reached by taking West River to North Saginaw, Meridian and Cole roads. This park on the Tittabawassee River offers hiking trails and picnic tables.

To reach St. Louis, bikers take Meridian road south to Pine River road and meander easterly to Riverside road and into the city on Union, River court and Main streets.

Bikers then take westbound M-46 (Washington Street in St. Louis) to Lisco road (Shepherd road in Isabella County) and follow Federal, Blanchard and Mission roads into Mount Pleasant. There is a roadside park on Federal road.

Bicyclists should pace themselves according to their ability. The League of American Wheelmen estimates the average bicyclist can cover 35 to 40 miles a day with ease. A card and pamphlet containing bicycle safety tips are available free at all Automobile Club of Michigan offices.

Strike Bogs British Air Travel

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Travelers flying to and from Britain and within the island faced long delays or flight cancellations for the next four days as assistant air traffic controllers began a weekend strike for higher pay.

Airport officials said they hoped to keep 60 per cent of the scheduled traffic in the air. But the strikers' union claimed 75 per cent of all traffic through British air space would be halted, up to 5,000 flights.

Flight operations continued at the seven struck British airports because the senior controllers who direct operations belong to another union and were not on strike. But flights were delayed or canceled because the 850 striking assistants were not on hand to make out flight plans, compile logs and perform other such tasks.

British Airways (BA), the national airline, was hit hardest by the strike, which began at midnight Thursday, and by a 10-day slowdown at London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports that preceded the walkout. The line canceled 30 per cent of its flights Thursday and today and waited to see if more cuts were necessary.

"Other airlines have refused to share the cancellations," said a BA spokesman. "They said it was a British row and nothing to do with them."

A TWA spokesman said his line planned no cancellations, but he predicted some delays. Pan American, the other major U.S. international carrier, did not announce any cancellations.

Today was the start of the four-day Bank Holiday weekend in Britain, and travelers jammed the airports Thursday to beat the strike. The slowdown by the assistant controllers, who were refusing to use computers and doing their work by hand, delayed departures from Heathrow and Gatwick an average of three to five hours during the day and caused cancellation of 160 flights in and out. The strikers, who now earn up to $4,250 a year, are demanding that the government give them a 17 per cent pay increase agreed to in 1975 but postponed by the Labor government because of its anti-inflation ceiling of 10 per cent on wage increases.

The dispute has developed into a major test of the government's attempts to block a wage explosion following the end of formal pay restraints July 31.

Negotiations between the union and Employment Minister Albert Booth broke down Thursday night. The government has "done all it could," Booth said.

Hospital Critics Continue Blast

exact figure on what Eastmark's services cost the hospital this past year. James Cheek, Eastmark's vice-president for finance, estimated the cost at $1.50 per patient day, or roughly $3,000 per month.

He said that figure was considerably below fees of about $12 per patient day charged by other firms.

Robert McCormack, an outside consultant called in to study the staffing changes, said the hospital's primary problem was a lack of doctors to admit patients. According to hospital figures, Lake View had 18 admitting physicians in 1974, but only 10 at present.

"Tonight, there at least 18 hospitals in New York state going bankrupt," McCormack said. "I assure you that what is happening to you is happening all over the country."

"As soon as you get more physicians here, you'll get more census (patients), and then more jobs."

Pat Hyslop, the hospital's new director of nursing, said that problems with staffing shortages will gradually be straightened out once the new staffing plan is fully implemented.

Pat Middleton, the hospital's former nursing director, resigned Aug. 22, because of disagreements over the personnel changes, according to Dr. William Oliphant.

Dr. Oliphant, who is secretary of the hospital medical staff, claimed last night that during an Aug. 10 meeting with department heads, Payne indicated the department heads might lose their jobs if they gave information to doctors.

Payne denied the accusation, saying that he only wanted all information on the changes to come from the administration since there were a large number of rumors, and conflicting stories being spread.

Dr. Oliphant also said that on Tuesday night a number of hospital board members met both before and after a scheduled seminar to discuss strategy for last night's meeting. Kenneth Taylor, a Paw Paw school board member, said that meeting appeared to violate the state's open meetings law since it was not posted in advance.

Adams, an attorney, replied that the session was only a conference to discuss the workings of hospital boards in general.

James Hecker, Eastmark's vice-president for hospital services, said that in the future Lake View will continue emphasis on responsible financial management, and that a physician recruitment committee has been formed to bring more doctors to the hospital.

PUBLICITY STUNT BACKFIRES. Charles Costa, a Detroit landlord who deeded an inner city house to President and Mrs. Carter, says he may be out $2,000 because his publicity stunt backfired. A month after registering the deed to the Carters, Jan. 12, Costa received a letter from the Department of Housing and Urban Development saying Carter wouldn't accept the run-down two-family house. Costa, who bought the house in 1974 for $2,400, contends he has lost $5,000 on it because nine tenants moved in and out without paying rent or utilities. He said a buyer has offered $2,000 for the house, but he can't sell it unless the Carters deed it back. Several attorneys suggested, however, that the house could not be deeded to the President unless there is some acknowledgement of acceptance, such as a token $1 fee. A White House spokesman said the matter would be turned over to Carter's legal staff.

Berrien Earmarked For Share Of $327,553--But Won't Get It

Although Berrien county is earmarked to share in a $327,553 grant to provide birth control information to teenagers, the county won't get the money, according to Jerome Erickson, Berrien health officer. Berrien did not apply to share in the grant because officials here believe they have sufficient funding for family planning this year with a budget of $277,000, according to Erickson. That is an increase of $102,000 over last year, he said. The Michigan Department of Public Health announced Berrien and Allegan were among 11 counties in the state that will share in the grant. The department did not disclose specific amounts to each county.

Loan Collateral Was 'Recycled'

is anything else in writing. I don't know."

Dietsch was asked: You're not denying that the loan agreement language was in fact broken? Your point is that the bank wasn't enough concerned about that to call the loan?

He replied, "That's correct. The language in the note form is there."

Three Manufacturers documents, two of them letters to Lance, show that from June 2, 1976, through Nov. 5, 1976, the bank sought the stock dividends from Lance. James Hamblen, a Manufacturers vice president, said Thursday in a telephone interview that his bank wanted the stock dividends but never got them before the loan was paid off in January 1977.

Despite this, Hamblen said there was never any concern at Manufacturers that the loan was uncollectable. "The shares should have been there," he said. "But it wasn't a critical item in the total picture."

However, he also indicated that Manufacturers never knew that seven days before its first letter to Lance seeking the stock dividends, Lance had pledged them as collateral in May 1976, on a $150,000 loan from the Chemical Bank in New York City.

Both Lance and his wife, LaBelle, signed the loan agreement with Manufacturers Hanover Trust. They got $2,025,000 with which to buy stock in the National Bank of Georgia, of which Lance was then president.

As collateral, they pledged 146,118 shares of stock in the National Bank of Georgia (NBG) and 8,375 shares of stock in the Calhoun (Ga.) First National Bank, which Lance had formerly headed.

The agreement they signed also pledged them to deliver any stock dividends on those shares to Manufacturers as additional collateral. The agreement said the signers would deliver the dividends "in the exact form received... to be held by Bank as Collateral Security."

Such stock dividends were declared on Dec. 31, 1977, and Lance received 14,811 additional shares of NBG stock. According to Manufacturers' Nov. 5, 1976 letter to Lance asking him for the dividends, NBG stock then had a book value of $17.72 per share.

That meant the 14,811 shares had a total book value of $262,450.92.

However, instead of turning them over to Manufacturers as his loan agreement stipulated, Lance sent them to Chemical Bank as collateral on a loan he requested less than a month after the stock dividend was issued.

Lance requested the Chemical loan in a handwritten note to corporate vice president George C. Ross. "Dear George," Lance wrote. "Was good to visit on the phone. Sorry I missed seeing you Thursday. I need to borrow $265,800."

Chemical loaned him $150,000.

A Chemical document dated May 27, 1976, confirmed the bank's receipt of the 14,811 shares as collateral on the loan. At this time, Lance had been discussing with Manufacturers the collateral position of his loan there.

Manufacturers view throughout 1976 was described Thursday by Hamblen this way: "When you have a stock dividend, you've diluted the outstanding shares. There are more outstanding shares against the same amount of earnings. So what we wanted was to get the stock that had come to him as a result of the stock dividend. We wanted to get that into the kitty too."

On June 2, 1976, a week after Lance had pledged the shares to Chemical, Manufacturers vice president R. Bruce Brougham wrote Lance about a meeting they were to have later that month. "In regard to the current undercollateralized position of the loan," Brougham wrote, "as I understand it, you will bring the additional shares of NBG stock you were issued as a stock dividend at year end."

In an internal Manufacturers "Problem-Classified" Loan Report" on Sept. 20, 1976, senior vice president Frederick A.

LOVE YA: Pop singer Carol King hugs new husband, Rick Evers, 30, in Boise, Idaho, this week after their wedding. The two have learned for several songs on her new album, "Simple Things." (AP Wirephoto)

Rager wrote that "due to a stock dividend issued 12-31-76, borrower is in violation of our 90 per cent book value guidelines. This will be corrected by receipt of the additional shares of NBG stock and other collateral acceptable to us."

On Nov. 5, 1976, Manufacturers vice president Betsy Jo Viner wrote Lance, "We have still not received the 14,857 shares which you were issued as a stock dividend as of 12-31-76. Actually, the dividend amounted to 14,811 shares."

Dietsch, Lance's spokesman, said, "I am satisfied that there was certainly an intent on Mr. Lance's part to provide collateral to satisfy whatever was an appropriate level of collateral. There is room for a difference of opinion as to whether the loan was undercollateralized or not."

"But the bottom line is if Manufacturers Hanover Trust had felt insecure they would have called the loan and they didn't," Dietsch added. The Nov. 5 letter from Manufacturers seeking the dividend shares reflects some difference of opinion between Lance and the bank over what value to place on NBG stock. But there is no documentation that Manufacturers ever dropped its request to have the stock dividends as added collateral.

Ironically, Manufacturers vice president Hamblen said Thursday he suspected that Lance may ultimately have "thought that those shares had been sent to the bank."

Winnings Total $212,000

DETROIT (AP) — A 36-year-old draftsman ran his winnings up to $212,000 Thursday night and won the right to return next week for a third shot at the weekly Michigan lottery game. Richard Gasser of Flint picked up $100,000 in the latest drawing and he said he and his wife, Deanna, planned to set aside some of the prize money for the education of their two children. Gasser, a draftsman at the Gasser Engineering Co. in Flint, was making his second appearance as a SuperPlayer. Other winners in Thursday's show-down were: Frank Dydraloma, 73, Hamtramck, who won $10,000; Arlene Cullahan, 48, Detroit, $17,000; Donald Armstrong, 43, Jenison, $10,000; Ski's Five, a lottery club in Sterling Heights, represented by Edward Mucznick, $10,000; Raymond Gray, 97, Dearborn, $5,000, and Frances King, 31, $4,000.

Lobby Bill Hearing Set

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A sunshine bill for lobbyists forcing them to disclose how much money they spend to influence legislators will be the focus of public hearings around the state next month. Sen. Gary Corbin, D-Cllo, said Thursday his Municipalities and Elections Committee will hold seven hearings on the bill. He said the measure "contains some of the toughest, most responsible provisions for disclosing the activities of lobbyists ever proposed." Action on the bill by Corbin's committee is expected by the end of September. The reform measures are designed to improve the public's trust in government. A key point in the bill is a requirement that lobbyists account for their activities and the money they spend on entertaining and influencing legislators, mass mailings and advertising. The hearings will be held Sept. 8 in Warren, Sept. 7 in Detroit and Royal Oak, Sept. 8 in Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, Sept. 9 in Pontiac, Sept. 12 in Marquette, Sept. 13 in Saginaw and Flint, and Sept. 14 in Lansing.

Rail Pact Gets Nod

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The newly-formed Michigan Interstate Railway Co. will assume operation of the former Ann Arbor Railroad on Oct. 1 under a contract approved by the state Highway Commission. The plan announced Thursday still must be approved by the state Administrative Board. The company would replace Conrail's operation of 328 miles of line between Toledo, Ohio, and Frankfort, Mich. It also would run the ferry service which transports railcars, motor vehicles and passengers across Lake Michigan between Frankfort and Kewauqua, Wis. All the rolling stock and about 150 miles of track are owned by the state of Michigan, which purchased them from the trustee for the bankrupt Ann Arbor Railroad nearly 1½ years ago. All but the Toledo-to-Ann Arbor segment of the line had been threatened with abandonment.

Grant 'One Of The Largest'

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A five-year grant of up to $2.75 million has been given to the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research to continue its studies of the U.S. national elections. The grant, described as one of the largest and longest ever made by the National Science Foundation, will underwrite the election survey and data development from Sept. 1, 1977, through August 1982. The series of major studies on voter attitudes and political participation have been conducted for all national elections since 1952.

State Gas Tax Take Gains

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan motorists are driving more than ever despite rising gasoline prices, says the Department of Highways and Transportation. Receipts from state gas and diesel fuel taxes for the three months ending June 30 totaled $106.9 million, up 5.1 per cent over the same period in 1976, the agency announced Thursday. License plate fees were also up during the period by 36 per cent to $33.1 million. But officials said that was because many motorists bought their plates late, unlike 1975 when they bought the new Bicentennial plates before that calendar period.

Divers Recover Body

HARRISVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Divers near this Alcona County community have found the body of a second airman missing in Lake Huron since early August. Authorities said Thursday the body of 19-year-old Alvin Terrance Van Eten of Michigan City, Ind., was recovered from the lake on Wednesday. Van Eten and another airman, both stationed at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, were reported missing after their sailboat was found overturned in the lake. The body of Van Eten's companion was found near Harrisville last week.

Dirty Plains Getting Help

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President Carter's hometown, deluged by mountains of trash left on the streets by tourists, has turned to the North for help.

Mayor A.L. Blanton said the four-man street-sweeping crew will be aided by a $15,300 vacuum-powder sweeper purchased from the Tennant Co. of Minneapolis, Minn.

He said it should have been delivered before Carter's visit to his hometown last month.

"But it didn't get here," the mayor said. "We raised hell."

The sweeper is due to arrive next Wednesday. Mayor Pro Tem Earl Godwin estimated about 3,000 visitors a day come to Plains, leaving empty beer and soft drink cans, candy wrappers, napkins and other debris all over the place. "It's a mess," said Blanton.

Embattled Black Judge Picking Up Supporters

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit judge is picking up support in her flouting of a state Supreme Court order to move from Recorder's Court to Common Pleas Court for six months.

Judge Geraldine Ford, asked Thursday if she would comply with the order today, laughed and expressed gratitude for the public backing from politicians and community group leaders.

Mrs. Ford, known as a tough judge, received support at a news conference held by two Detroit city council members, five Wayne County commissioners, the Wayne County prosecutor and representatives of the Urban League and NAACP.

They demanded that she be reinstated to the bench of Recorder's Court.

She was ordered moved because she refused to cooperate with the criminal court's crash program to do away with a huge case backlog.

She said she was morally opposed to the methods of the crash program, which include plea bargaining and sentence bargaining.

The transfer is regarded in legal circles as both a demotion and punishment for her refusal to go along with the program.

Chief Recorder's Court Judge Samuel Gardner and Special Court Administrator T. John Lesinski have said they requested the transfer to the court dealing with civil cases involving less than $10,000 because she had poor work habits, disposed of too few cases and refused to meet with them to discuss their criticism of her work.

"Court efficiency is not the only issue before us in the current Recorder's Court controversy," said Detroit Councilwoman Maryann Mahaffey. "We had better determine if sex discrimination is also involved."

And Wayne County Prosecutor William Cahan said she is a favorite of many police officers and other law enforcement officials because of her tough sentencing practices. Her transfer contradicts the will of the electorate, said a letter sent to Gardner by five Wayne County Commissioners.

Flyers were circulated announcing a demonstration today in her support.

Many Districts Still Deep In Negotiations

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

With school bells set to ring within two weeks, slightly over two-thirds of the K-12 public school districts in southwestern Michigan are still negotiating teacher contracts or portions of them for the 1977-78 school year. In a telephone survey conducted by this newspaper yesterday, of the 31 districts contacted, 21 indicated teacher contract negotiations of some sort were still in progress. K-12 public school districts with settled contracts include: St. Joseph, Bridgman, New Buffalo, Niles, and Watervliet in Berrien county; Bangor, Gobles, Lawton and Mattawan in Van Puren county; and Fennville in Allegan county.

Cass county's four public K-12 systems, Dowagiac, Cassopolis, Edwardsburg and Marcellus, are still negotiating. Teachers from the Cass county schools, plus Decatur in Van Buren county and eight schools in St. Joseph county have formed the Southwestern Michigan Education Association.

Local teacher unions are representing SWMEA in contract talks this year, according to school officials.

Teachers from three school districts in Berrien county are waiting for a decision on whether they can form a multi-district bargaining association.

Brandywine and River Valley districts are still waiting for a decision from the Michigan Employment Relations Commission on whether they can be represented by the 5-C Education Association. Buchanan teachers also plan to hold an election on joining the 5-C group.

Here's a brief rundown on each of the 21 K-12 districts still involved in negotiations as of yesterday:

BERRIEN COUNTY

Benton Harbor — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

Berrien Springs — Negotiating on salary and fringe benefit re-opener clauses of a multi-year pact.

Brandywine, Buchanan and River Valley — Waiting to see which bargaining unit is going to represent the teachers at thubargaining table. No negotiations at the present time.

Coloma — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

Eau Claire — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

Gallen — A mediation session has been set for Aug. 30 with a state mediator. Currently in the second year of a three-year pact, but have reached a stalemate on a salary re-opener clause.

Lakeshore — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

VAN BUREN COUNTY
Bloomington — Still negotiating on salary and fringe benefit re-opener clauses.

Decatur — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

Covert — Negotiating on salary and fringe benefit re-opener clauses.

Hartford — Still negotiating salary re-opener clauses on the last year of a three-year pact.

Lawrence — Withholding negotiations on re-opener clauses on the second year of a three-year pact until after the fourth Friday, school enrollment count.

Paw Paw — Still negotiating on a new master contract.

South Haven — Haven't started negotiations on a new master contract yet, waiting results of a representation election.

Late Entry Hogs All The Cash

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Everyone was a loser in an all-night gambling session except a late arrival with a gun. Police said a gunman walked into a home where the gambling session was finishing up about 8 a.m. Thursday, brandished a .38-caliber revolver, took $2,300 in cash from the table and fled. Police said the men wouldn't be charged with illegal gambling. Three of the participants reported the theft.

The commissioners then unanimously approved giving the mental health department another $3,000. The additional $3,000 will be taken from an institutional care fund surplus.

Roger Steenland, county mental health director, and Edward Barton, county mental health board chairman, both felt the department could live with the appropriations.

They had previously said that the county share needed to fund three state mandated programs in 1977-78, was $47,575, which would result in state matching funds of $735,687. An additional $19,000 was needed to cover other programs currently offered in the county, they said.

Mandated programs required by the state include a handicapped development center, out-patient services and a day activity center for out-patients. Other programs offered include residential programs for handicapped and retarded, plus programs for those recently released from mental institutions.

GARTH BEAM HONORED: Garth Beam, right, former Watervliet superintendent of public works, was honored last night at a surprise retirement party at Ed's Cafe, Watervliet. Some 28 city officials and co-workers attended dinner. Mayor Arvid Frazier, left, announced new bridge on Butternut street would be dedicated to Beam. Frazier, and Mr. and Mrs. Beam hold likeness of bronze plaque which will be placed on bridge during dedication ceremonies. Beam was superintendent of public works from 1947 to 1971, when he stepped down to assistant superintendent due to ill health. His retirement was effective June 7. ## Allegan OKs Funds For Mental Health ALLEGAN — It took three votes, but the Allegan county commissioners last night in special session approved a $60,000 appropriation for the county mental health department for 1977-78.

The department had requested $66,886 from the county, some $26,000 above the current year, at Tuesday's regular commission meeting. Commissioners took no action on the request Tuesday night.

Last night, the commission's ways and means committee met with Duane Koshork, regional director of state mental health department, prior to the special session. Following the meeting, the ways and means committee recommended that $57,000 be approved.

Commissioner Robert E. Drew of Fennville immediately moved to amend the request and made a motion that $60,000 be approved for the mental health department. His motion was defeated in a 6-6 tie vote.

The original motion for $57,000 was then approved by the commission in a 10-2 vote. Commission Chairman James Rolfe of Allegan and Commissioner Arthur Popp of Plainwell

'Pigeon Drop' Nets $7,000

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — A 62-year-old Battle Creek man is out $7,000 after two con artists made him the victim in a scheme investigators call a "pigeon drop." The victim told police he met two men in a Battle Creek parking lot this week and the pair challenged him to a card game. After producing a roll of bills, the pair reportedly asked the victim to the match the sum. Police said the man withdrew the $7,000 from his bank account, then proceeded "win" the card game, which was played in his car. The con artists then appeared to wrap the winnings in handkerchief and place it in the car's glove compartment, police said. But when the victim retrieved the handkerchief, he found it filled with tissue paper instead of money.

BIG VISITOR BRINGS HINT OF WINTER: The Algorail of the Algoma Central Railway in Canada arrived in St. Joseph Thursday and unloaded 17,270 tons of salt at Horan Redi-Mix dock. Salt will go to highway departments and road commissions in Michigan and Indiana for use during winter. The Algorail, out of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, is 650 feet long, and at time of first trip to St. Joseph in 1971 was biggest ship ever to dock here, according to Jim

Maxwell, dock manager for Horan. Maxwell said a bigger ship has since docked at Ireland and Lester. Markings in picture at top show that Algorail can be loaded to draw 30 feet, but in St. Joseph channel 22 feet is maximum because of depth. Algorail unloaded salt in about five hours and departed at 6 p.m. One more cargo of salt is expected here before winter to battle snow and ice. (Staff photos)

Berrien General's Expansion Opposed

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

Three private Berrien county hospitals are planning to appeal a regional health agency's approval of a request by Berrien General hospital to construct a new intensive care unit and remodel its acute care facility.

The Berrien General projects, tagged at $586,224, were approved Wednesday night by the Southwest Health Care Systems Agency in Kalamazoo and forwarded to the Michigan Department of Public Health for final action.

R.A. Bradburn, administrator of Memorial hospital in St. Joseph, said he and his fellow administrators at Mercy hospital in Benton Harbor and Pawling hospital in Niles plan to file a joint appeal with the state health department "in the next few days."

All three administrators contend that not enough study was given to the proposal before it received regional approval and that there already may be too many intensive care beds in the area.

Their joint appeal is supported by resolutions approved by the three hospital boards of trustees.

At the present time Berrien General has a 775-square foot intensive care unit containing seven beds that has been cited by the state health department for inadequate room and other substandard conditions, according to Administrator Sandra Bruce.

The county hospital now is proposing to construct a new 3,273 square foot addition for six intensive care beds at a cost of $367,000 and to remodel the present intensive care unit and three four-bed wards into private and semi-private rooms at a cost of around $200,000.

Administrators at the three private hospitals contend that this would give Berrien General a much higher ratio of intensive care beds to other medical-surgical beds than the 20 to 1 ratio they say is used by planning consultants in constructing new hospitals.

According to Bradburn, C.T. Loftus of Mercy hospital and Robert W. Melbye of Pawling, Berrien General has only 45 acute care beds while Memorial has 158 and only six intensive care beds. Mercy has 175 acute and eight intensive care beds and Pawling has 179 acute and eight intensive care beds.

All say their intensive care beds could handle more patients, with Memorial reporting an average occupancy of 70 per cent and Pawling an average occupancy of 50.3 per cent so far this fiscal year.

Mercy's intensive care unit had an average occupancy of about 87 per cent last year, Loftus says, but he notes this is abnormally high because it includes open heart surgery cases and Mercy is the only area hospital to perform such surgery.

"An intensive care bed costs 3-4 times what a normal patient bed costs to maintain," Melbye says. "Our unit is operating at a loss and we're charging $180 a day."

"The question is what the area needs — and this is the purpose of the health systems agency. We're just asking that they look at the whole area and determine what is really needed."

"We think Berrien General needs two intensive care beds at most — maybe not any."

Bradburn, in a letter to the regional agency, said that "from Memorial hospital's statistics it would seem that six intensive care beds would be an excessive number for a 45-bed medical surgical unit in a primary care hospital. Considering the construction and operating costs involved, a more critical evaluation of the need is indicated."

Robert Azar, executive director of the regional health systems agency, said letters from Bradburn and Melbye were read before the agency board approved the project Wednesday night, but that it was the first indication of any opposition.

He said the agency's facilities and services committee recommended board approval following an Aug. 3 public hearing at which hospital administrators and other interested parties were invited to comment on the project.

Approval by the state health department would only be for a certificate of need required for any hospital project over $100,000.

Funding for the work would depend on the county getting an increase in federal revenue sharing or a U.S. Economic Development Administration grant, County Commissioner Otto Grau said earlier this month.

Coloma Will Flush Hydrants Next Week

COLOMA — Coloma city fire hydrants will be flushed Monday and Tuesday nights, between 7 and 9 each night, according to City Clerk Patricia Beezley.

Children's Office Proposed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A state lawmaker says he will introduce legislation this fall to create a state office to coordinate services for children. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, said Thursday his proposal would create a "office of child advocacy" and funnel services for children through that agency. The office would devise a state plan to address the needs of children, oversee budgets relating to children and family assistance, handle federal funds and coordinate state services. He also called for certification and training of nursery school teachers.

Rookie's Grand Slam Clips Cubs

Brock One Steal Away!

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gary Alexander almost went into the trivia book with Al Downing, Ralph Branca and Tracy Stallard.

Alexander, the San Francisco catcher, was behind the plate Thursday night when Lou Brock stole his 25th and 26th bases of the season to increase his career mark to 301 and pull within one of the Major League record set by Ty Cobb.

"I thought about the situation last night (Wednesday) because I knew I was going to be playing," said the rookie catcher. "But I really didn't mind. He is going to set the record sooner or later. I'm just glad it wasn't off me."

For non-trivia buffs, Downing, Branca and Stallard are all pitchers. Downing gave up Hank Aaron's 715th home run, which broke Babe Ruth's career mark. Branca served up Bobby Thompson's celebrated home run in the final game of the 1951 playoffs to give the New York Giants the National League pennant. Stallard was on the mound when Roger Maris hit his 61st home run in 1961 to break Ruth's single-season mark.

"The crowd tried to intimidate me by yelling at the top of my lungs," said Alexander.

In the first inning, the 38-year-old Brock singled. Two pitches later he stole second. He attempted to add third base to his theft total and was two-thirds of the way when Garry Templeton fouled off a 2-2 pitch.

A double by Keith Hernandez scored Brock with the game's first run. In the third, Brock beat out an infield hit and stole second again. This time he scored on Templeton's single and the Cards were in front 2-0.

It didn't stay that way long as San Francisco starter John Montefusco, who scattered eight hits through six innings, drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning single as the Giants downed the Cardinals, 4-2.

In other NL games Thursday, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles

2-1. Atlanta defeated Chicago 8-6. Cincinnati nipped New York 3-2 and Houston squeezed by Philadelphia 6-5.

Reliever Larry Demery finished up what John Candalaria started, then gave a fan an unexpected souvenir of Pittsburgh's victory over the Dodgers.

"A guy kept calling me a bum," Demery said. "I showed him different."

Reggie Smith, the first batter Demery faced when he entered the game in the sixth inning, smashed his 24th home run of the season, narrowing Pittsburgh's lead to 2-1. That started the fan's heckling.

But Demery held the Dodgers to only one hit and one walk the rest of the way, earning his first save of the season as Candalaria increased his record to 14-4. And, when the game ended, Demery trotted over to stands and tossed the ball to the heckler.

Rookie third baseman Junior Moore smashed the first grand slam home run of his major league career. In the first inning, Thursday night, powering the Atlanta Braves to an 8-4 victory over the slumping Chicago Cubs.

The score was tied 1-1 when Moore connected for his third home run of the season, a drive off the back wall in left field.

Right-hander Dick Ruthven, 5-10, pitched the first five innings for Atlanta, scattering five hits and earning the victory. He left the game after pulling a muscle in his right leg.

Greg Gross put the Cubs ahead 1-0 in the first when he drilled his third homer of the season and second in two nights. But the Braves came right back in the bottom of the inning, scoring the tying run on Willie Montanez' double before Moore slammed his basesloaded homer.

Atlanta chased starter Bill Bonham, 10-11, in the second with two more runs, driven in by Jeff Burroughs and Montanez. Then in the fifth, Pat Ricketts singled home Montanez, who had doubled for his fifth hit in seven at-bats.

The Cubs closed the gap with four runs in the eighth on Manny Trillo's two-run triple, Steve Swisher's sacrifice fly and Gross' run-scoring single.

A seventh-inning single by Dave Concepcion drove in two runs and carried Cincinnati past New York. Concepcion's hit scored Johnny Bench and Dan Driessen.

Len Randle slammed his fifth homer of the year for New York.

Fred Norman, 12-10, scattered five hits through seven innings and struck out seven, including the 1,000th strikeout of his career, to get the victory.

Consecutive home runs by Bob Watson and Joe Ferguson and a run-scoring double by Cesar Cedeno rallied Houston over Philadelphia. It was the Phillies' second straight loss after winning 19 of 20.

The Phils jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, but Houston scored twice in the second and Watson led off the fourth with his homer. Ferguson followed with his round-tripper on the next pitch.

Houston pinch-hitter Wilbur Howard singled to open the Astros' seventh, was sacrificed to second and scored the winning run on Cedeno's double.

FIRST OF TWO: Lou Brock slides into second for first of two bases he stole Thursday night. The thefts gave him 891 stolen bases, just one shy of Ty Cobb's record of 892. San Francisco shortstop Tim Lincecum reaches for a throw that came late from catcher Gary Alexander. (AP Wirephoto)

Watch 'Pit' Play Tonight

Browns Outduel Bears, Phipps

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sometimes there's nothing more exciting in a pro football game than the action in "the pit," where behemoths collide on every play. And when two behemoths go at each other, it takes the collisions even more fearsome.

Which is why, when you're not watching Fran Tarkenton, Bob Griese or the rest of the more obvious players on Minnesota and Miami in tonight's National Football League game on ABC, you might glance in the trenches. Vikings defensive tackle Joe Jackson and Dolphins offensive tackle Wally Phipps will be raising some dust.

The long weekend of exhibition moves into high gear Saturday night with Baltimore at Dallas, Los Angeles at Kansas City, Cincinnati at St. Louis, San Diego at Oakland, Detroit at Seattle, Washington at Green Bay, the New York Jets at New Orleans and Tampa Bay vs. Atlanta at Orlando, Fla. On Sunday it's Pittsburgh at New England and Denver at Philadelphia, then the weekend ends Monday night with Buffalo at the New York Giants and San Francisco at Houston.

Thursday night, Cleveland beat Chicago 14-7 as Brian Sipe easily outduelled former teammate Mike Phipps. Sipe had two short TD passes in the first half and completed 14 of 27 pass attempts while Phipps was sacked five times and hit only three of 13 passes.

Jackson, trying to make a name for himself as a member of Minnesota's vaunted Purple Gang, has been wowing Bud Grant. The glacial head coach, usually tight with the compliment, has had a few nice things to say about the New Mexico State alumnus, a one-time New York Jet picked up on waivers from Washington.

"This is a game where you have to take advantage of opportunities and Joe has done well whenever he's had a chance to play," Grant said.

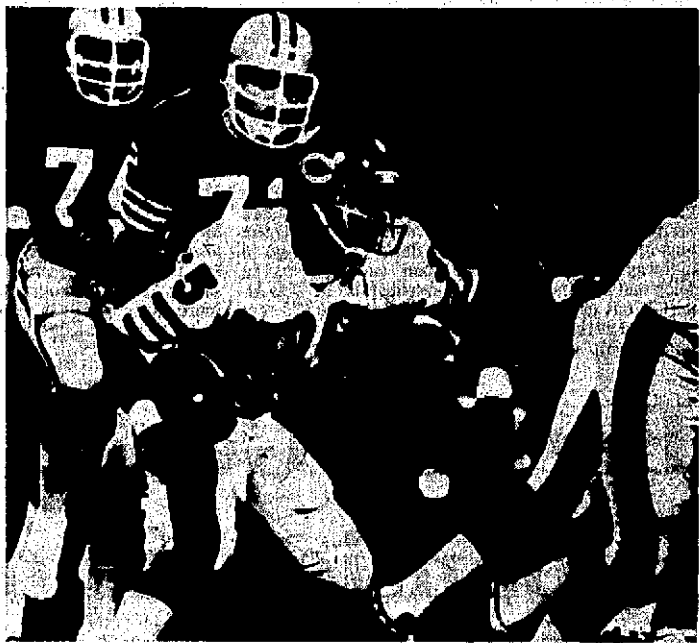

On the other side of the scrimmage line will be Phipps, Dallas' fifth-round draftee out of the University of Kentucky and now trying to hook on with the Dolphins as a free agent. He's replacing Wayne Moore, sidelined for at least a couple of games with a bruised triceps.

"I know I'm under a pressure situation," said Phipps. "I still consider myself a rookie. How I perform in this game is going to make a big impression on the coaches. I'm still new and learning."

Clearly, he's already learned one thing. "When he came here this summer, he had absolutely no shot," said Don Shula, Miami's head coach. "We didn't even know whether we wanted to bring him back. But John Sandusky (the line coach) got him straightened out and he has come on. He had one of the worst stances you've ever seen."

The Vikings are 2-1 in the preseason, their loss coming last weekend in a 28-7 whipping by Baltimore. Miami, unbeaten in three games, held off Dallas 20-14 a week ago.

Joe Froberg picked up the pitching victory as Steve Koch, Craig Kolbert and Tim Lombardo belted home runs. Harvey Johnson had two hits for St. Paul's. Trinity finished with a 15-3 league record.

Las Vegas Given 2-Year Probation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The University of Nevada-Las Vegas, a run-and-gun basketball powerhouse, has been socked with a two-year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Following the announcement Thursday at the NCAA's office in Kansas City, UNLV officials scheduled a news conference for today in Las Vegas, reportedly to discuss the matter.

The NCAA's investigation centered on UNLV basketball program activities from 1971 to 1975 and included numerous violations and what the NCAA calls "questionable practices." Included in the NCAA's summary were instances of illegal gifts to players, illegal cash allowances, promises of free dental care for prospective players, free airplane trips home for players and promises of free airplane trips to the UNLV games for the families of players.

UNLV will be prohibited from participating in any post-season competition during the 1977-78 and 1978-79 academic years. The team also is restricted from appearing in NCAA-controlled television programs during the two-year period.

In addition, the university will be permitted to award only three new basketball scholarships each year for the two years.

UNLV Basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian, cited in several of the violations and questionable practices listed by the NCAA, said Thursday the three-player recruiting limit will be "a hindrance." But he added, "We'll be as strong as ever, we'll be back."

The NCAA's ruling said the university must "take appropriate disciplinary and corrective action" against the persons cited for the violations.

As a result, former head basketball coach John Bayer, Tarkanian, a former assistant basketball coach and eight athletic boosters will be disciplined by the school.

After talking with school officials Thursday night, Tarkanian said he would stay at UNLV. Earlier, UNLV president Dr. Donald Baepier and University of Nevada Board of Regents Member Chris Karamanos both said they do not believe the disciplinary action required by the NCAA will include Tarkanian's ouster.

Surprise Nordhagen HRs Help Chisox Keep Pace

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Chicago White Sox got some power from an unexpected source Thursday night. And it helped them keep pace in the American League West.

Wayne Nordhagen belted his first two major league home runs, driving in four runs as the White Sox defeated Baltimore 6-4. The victory moved Chicago back into second place in the AL West, two percentage points ahead of Texas and Minnesota and three games behind first-place Kansas City.

"My big plus in the minor leagues always was driving in runs," said Nordhagen, 29, who spent nine years in places like Kingston of the Carolina League and Oklahoma City in the American Association. "But I don't hit too many home runs. The most I ever hit was 16."

The White Sox did hit a lot of homers — 182 so far this season — but they don't usually rely on Nordhagen for run-production. Except against Baltimore. "I play against left-handers a lot and they have three lefty starters," noted Nordhagen, who has gotten six of his 12 runs batted in this season against the Orioles. "I hit two curve balls for the homers. I haven't seen any curves since who knows when."

Eric Soderholm, who the White Sox do pay to hit home runs, slugged his 20th of the season and Lerrin LaGrow recorded his 20th save.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston broke a seven-game losing streak with a 9-6 victory over Texas New York defeated Minnesota 6-4 and Kansas City ran its winning streak to nine with a 9-6 triumph over Milwaukee.

The Red Sox rallied for six runs in the seventh inning to overtake Texas and remain two games behind New York in the AL East. Butch Hobson's 25th homer of the season, a three-run shot in the seventh, and George Scott's run-scoring single and 30th home run were the key hits for Boston.

New York continued its hot streak, winning its 11th game in the last 12 as Reggie Jackson singled home the winning run and Chris Chambliss doubled home an insurance tally in the eighth inning. Mickey Rivers also singled in a pair of runs and had three hits in the contest, raising his batting average to .334.

New York relief ace Sparky Lyle, 34, got the victory while Minnesota bullpen star Tom Johnson, 33, was the loser.

Kansas City's surge continued thanks to John Wathan's first major-league homer, a three-run shot in a six-run third inning. The nine straight triumphs set a club record.

Paul Splittorff, 31, got the victory, while Jerry Augustine, 31, absorbed the defeat.

Snead Ends Slump With Sparkling 63

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Positive thinking, said J.C. Snead, is very important in pro golf.

But, he added with a funny little smile and a slow, Virginia drawl, positive thinking only works when you're getting results.

"Let's say I think I can run through that wall," he said. "Well, I take a run at it. About the 10th time I bounce off that wall, I'm gonna start thinking maybe I can't run through it after all."

Or, he said, there is the matter of attitude; being positive, cheerful, full of smiles, is something to be desired.

"But if you see a guy who's three-putted four holes in a row and he's still smiling, he's either faking or he's crazy as heck."

The putts started falling for the slump-ridden Snead, and the door in the wall opened just a bit as he fired a sparkling, eight-under-par 63 for the first-round lead Thursday in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

But Snead — winner of six tour titles and an Australian Open and a key figure on two U.S. Ryder Cup teams — was not ready to pronounce an end to his season-long slump, a slump so severe he had considered quitting the game in which he has won $750,000 in the last six years.

"I've played one good round," said the former pro baseball player. "I don't know if I'm over the hump or not. This stupid game, you never know what's going to happen. Nobody ever really beats it. I'll just have to go out and see what happens."

Snead one-putted 10 times, including eight in a row, as he came within one stroke of the record on the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club, a revered, 7,007-yard layout in the Carolina sandhill country that yielded some of the lowest scores in its lengthy history.

Leonard Thompson, who grew up about 20 miles away and has played here for almost two decades, was one stroke back after a 64, by three strokes the best he ever has scored here. "I never thought I'd shoot 64 on No. 2," he said.

Hale Irwin and Lon Hinkle had 65s and Mike Morley a 66 in the mild, hazy, almost windless weather.

Defending champion Ray Floyd was five shots back after a 68. Masters and British Open winner Tom Watson had a 70. Bobby Locke, a 60-year-old South African inducted into the Hall of Fame Tuesday night, shot 83 in his first round, unshotted States since 1956.

"I'm hitting the ball quite well, just a bit more frequently than I used to," Locke said.

Delvecchio In NHL Hall Of Fame

TORONTO (AP) — Former Detroit Red Wings Coach Alex Delvecchio is in the National Hockey League's Hall of Fame today after more than 22 years in professional hockey.

Inducted Thursday night, Delvecchio was only the second player in NHL history to play more than 20 years for one team. The first was his teammate, Gordie Howe.

Delvecchio was fired last season and replaced by General Manager Ted Lindsay and Coach Bobby Krom after serving as coach and general manager since the 1973-74 season.

By the time Delvecchio retired as a player in 1973, he had played in 1,549 regular season games with the Wings, plus another 121 in playoffs.

Delvecchio was inducted along with Harold Ballard, the blustery owner of Toronto Maple Leafs and one of the chief opponents to a proposed merger between the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association this summer; John F. Ahearn, the man who ran the International Ice Hockey Federation for 18 seasons; Joseph Cattarinich, a former part-owner of Montreal Canadiens; and the late Tim Horton, who was a defenseman with Toronto, New York Rangers, Pittsburgh Penguins and Buffalo Sabres.

Delvecchio completed his playing career with a total of 456 goals and 825 assists in scheduled games and 39 goals and 69 assists in playoffs.

In the entire period, he collected only 383 penalty minutes — never more than 37 in any one season.

Despite his consistent play, Delvecchio often was overshadowed by Howe. But along the way, Delvecchio, nicknamed "Fats" for his round face and wide grin, managed to pick up the Lady Bing Memorial Trophy for gentlemanly conduct three times.

He also was one of the few players in NHL history to be named to two different positions on all-star teams, as a center in 1952-53 and as a left winger in 1958-59, both times on the second team.

In 1974, he received the Lester Patrick Award for outstanding service to hockey in the U.S. At the time of his retirement, he was second only to Howe in NHL records for games played, seasons played, most assists and most points.

Ballard, 73, was overjoyed earlier this month in New York when the NHL's board of governors defeated a motion to expel the league to accommodate six WHA teams.

It was his contention that WHA teams had robbed several players from his Leafs and Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series without compensation.

Ballard, Stafford Smythe and John Bassett Sr., acquired the Maple Leafs from Conn Smythe and his associates during the 1962-63 season and the club remained under that ownership until 1970 when Ballard and Smythe bought out the Bassett.

In 1972, Ballard bought up Smythe's shares and became principal owner and chief executive officer of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd.

Cattarinich, who also was a goaltender for Montreal in 1910, purchased the Canadiens along with Leo Dandurand and Louis Letourneau from George Kennedy's widow.

Under this management, the club won three NHL regular-season titles as well as three Stanley Cup championships.

Horton, who died in a car accident Feb. 21, 1974, played 22 seasons and was a three-time first-team all-star selection.

Fine, Probation For 'M' Cager

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A Michigan-bound basketball player is being fined $25 and put on 90 days probation after being convicted of hitting another player during a basketball game July 27.

Mike McGee, a standout at Omaha North High School who will attend the University of Michigan this fall, was found guilty Thursday by Municipal Court Judge Elizabeth Pittman.

Another player, Clayton Bullard, was acquitted on the same charge. Bullard, a former Omaha Central star, now plays at the University of Colorado.

McGee and Bullard both had been charged with assault and battery, a misdemeanor, in connection with injuries suffered by Mike Trader. McGee and Bullard were on the same team, opposing Trader's club.

The incident occurred during a city league-type tournament at Creighton Prep. Trader alleged that McGee punched him and that Bullard kicked him in the face.

Rocket Football Expands

BUCHANAN — This season's Buchanan Rocket Football program will include 12 and 13-year-olds for the first time, according to Rocket football president Fred Kline.

Registration for the overall program for youths eight to 13 will be held here Saturday, Aug. 27, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Buchanan Teen Center.

A parent should accompany each boy. Youths who can't make Saturday's registration should call Kline (695-6755).

Buchanan Rocket Football is supported through contributions of local businesses and work projects, such as a candy sale a concession stand and a dance.

Offensive Line Looks Good Watervliet's Backs Gone

WATERVLIET — Jerry Barchett won't be the only familiar face not in attendance when Watervliet opens the 1977 football season on Sept. 9.

First year coach Doug Borsum will have to find replacements for running backs and all-Red Arrow defensive players Tom Hutchinson and Jon Hinkelman.

Also gone through graduation are all-league end Tim Hardy and all-league defensive lineman Art Lynch.

The Panthers, 5-2 in the conference and 5-4 overall, do have their starting quarterback senior Jim Hutchinson (5-10, 160), back. "But we must overcome the lack of experience and depth in the offensive backfield," Borsum explains.

Senior Steve Schultz (5-11, 175) played some swingback last year and he looks to be the replacement for Hutchinson at fullback. Schultz will also be back at linebacker.

Senior Fred Frazee (5-11, 180) will jump in at the swingback slot. "We feel we can utilize Fred's speed better at swingback," comments Borsum.

At fullback, senior Mark Bolin (6-0, 162), a letterman who saw action last year, is back.

"One of the strong points on this team is the experienced offensive line," Borsum beams.

Linebacker back are senior tackle Dave Baiers (5-6, 191), senior guard Jeff Morlock (5-11, 164), senior guard Bryan Epple (5-11, 188) and senior end Pat Iiff (6-0, 188).

Borsum will also have the services of sophomore center Scott Tatter (6-1, 165). As a freshman, Tatter played about half the season.

Bob Ferrell, a 6-4, 212-pound junior, will help out at both offensive and defensive tackle, while juniors Paul Kreiger (6-3, 163) and Jeff Parker (6-2, 155) will be vying for end spots.

On defense, Baiers, Frazee, Morlock and Epple will be in the trenches. Schultz and Iiff will man the linebacker posts and Hutchinson and Bolin will be in the backfield.

It's not the defense that Borsum is worried about, however, it's the offense.

"Hopefully, in the first game our defense will carry us and our offensive backfield will yell," Borsum states. "If we can control and move the football, this can be a good year for us."

The head coach isn't going to change much from the old Barchett-style of football.

quarterback. "He's very important to us. He is able to run the offense and work with the backs who don't have the experience."

"Without an experienced quarterback in our backfield, I feel we would really have a problem."

"We are going to have a power ground game," he says. "We will have to see how Jim's arm is. You could see a few more footballs in the air."

With the millage problems, Watervliet only has one assistant varsity coach, Ron Fyanc, who also is the new track coach, is handling the offensive and defensive backs for Borsum.

Tourneys Like RFK Big Among Celebs

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Alan King's secretary poked a blonde head through the door and said that Ethel Kennedy was on the line.

The moon-faced entertainer-producer picked up the telephone. "Hello, darling," he said. "No, I'm in the spirit, I have just been busy, that's all. What can I do for you?"

King wrinkled his nose pensively as he listened.

"Peter Ustinov. Well, I don't know whether I can get him or not. He would be great. I am sure he must be in Paris. I'll try to track him down."

"No, I won't play with Jimmy Connors."

He put the receiver on the hook and sighed.

"These celebrity tennis tournaments, they're something," he said, half to himself and half to a handful of guests ensconced in the overstuffed chairs of his Fifth Avenue office.

"I remember when I put on the first one for Howard Hughes in Las Vegas 11 years ago. You couldn't get four celebrities to pick up a racquet. Now in my tournament, I use 32 pros and 32 celebrities. Every year I turn down 60 celebrities."

"There's a pro-celeb in California every week, it seems. You've got booking agents who do nothing but put their clients into these tournaments. It's a mess. But this one of Ethel's — it's one of the great ones and for a good cause (the Robert F. Kennedy Foundation)."

The RFK Memorial event, raising funds for underprivileged youths, pitches its annual tent Saturday at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills. Vice President Walter Mondale heads a cast of show business, political and sports personalities who will don white shorts and swap shots with top tournament pros.

"A few years ago, 15- and 16-year-old kids dreamed of being movie and television heroes," King said. "Now they all want to be Dr. J. (basketball's renowned Julius Erving), O.J. Simpson or Bjorn Borg."

As promoter and player, Alan King is the uncrowned king of the celebrity racket set.

"I am the only man ever to complete the Grand Slam," he said. "I won my own tournament at Las Vegas, the tournament at Dallas and the RFK Memorial the same year. Then I retired."

"For a successful pro-celebrity tournament you try to get a good player as well as a crowd pleaser," he explained. "Bill Cosby is both. So is David Hartman. Buddy Hackett is a crowd pleaser but plays tennis like a washerwoman. Charlton Heston plays tennis the way he drives chariots."

"You've got some pretty good players in politics. Senator Jacob Javits is over 70 but very good. Governor Byrne of New Jersey hits a good ball, so do Ted Kennedy and John Tunney."

King said he's seen celebrities get so uptight before taking the court that they have attacks of diarrhea. One big shot politico fled during the night.

"Guys who live in front of the cameras choke so bad they'll bounce a ball three times before it gets to the net. But that's what makes these tournaments so attractive — everybody wants to see a million-dollar celebrity make a fool of himself," King said.

DES MOINES, Ia. — Chris Knapp came through with his best performance to date for Iowa (Class AAA) of the American Association Monday.

But the effort was not good enough to give the former Lakeshore pitcher his first minor league win of the year.

Knapp lost a heartbreaking 1-0 decision to New Orleans, despite yielding just four hits. He struck out two and walked two.

In three starts since being sent down by the Chicago White Sox, Knapp has a 6-3 record, but possesses a good earned run average of 2.45.

Shamrock Offense Has No Returnees

Five Defensive Starters Back

BERRIEN SPRINGS — This season, coach Dick Bartz of Berrien Springs is paying the price for an all-senior offense which helped the Shamrocks win the Red Arrow title last year.

Bartz has exactly zero returning offensive starters and just five starters back on defense. "Right now, we just don't know what we can do on offense," Bartz means. "Some of our defensive starters will be good offensive players, too."

Gone for Berrien Springs, which finished with a perfect 7-0 league mark and 8-1 overall, are all-Red Arrow performers Tim Sunday, Jack Lewis, Doug Ewall, Jeff Spitzer, Ken Lehecky, Roger Johnson and Ken Disselberger.

Sunday was a two-way player and also went on to earn Associated Press All-State honors in Class C on defense.

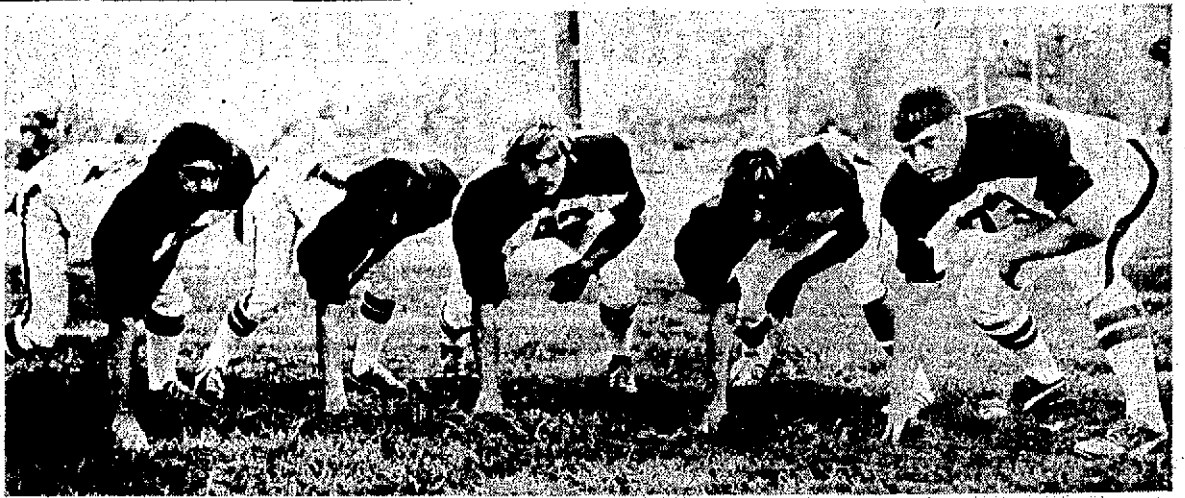

Returning to a defensive unit which only gave up 56 points in its last eight games are senior tackle John Young (6-0, 225), senior linebacker Tom Michienzi (5-11, 165), senior safety Roy Freeman (5-8, 139), junior linebacker Brad Layman (6-1, 183) and junior end Joey Hager (5-8, 155).

The rest of the defense will consist of senior Jeff Stuckey (5-10, 150) at wolfman; senior Rick Frantz (5-8, 145) at the nose guard slot, senior end Gregg Shafer (6-1, 170), senior tackle Andy Lehecky (5-11, 185), senior safety Brad Dixon (5-10, 165) and junior Arthur Hernandez (5-4, 145) at halfback.

The offense is where the question marks start popping up. Bartz has sophomore Todd Johnson (5-10, 155) and senior Mark Carter (6-0, 170) battling for the quarterback's job.

Johnson played quarterback on the junior varsity but was injured and didn't see much action. Carter didn't play football at all his junior year. Just to throw things into total disarray, the Shamrocks' starting jayvee quarterback moved to Niles.

She was listed in the May 1977 issue of the Women's Sport Magazine as one of the outstanding female athletes and also received the Women's Sports High School All-Star award co-sponsored by Noxzema Skin Cream. # Familiar Teams Grid Favorites

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Upstart Pitt provided a different look on college football's national championship throne last year. But most of the teams directly behind the Panthers were familiar names in such races and many of them have desires on the 1977 title.

For instance, Southern California and Michigan, which finished 2-3 behind Pitt in last year's Associated Press ratings, generally are considered the teams to beat in the Pacific-8 and Big Ten Conferences, respectively.

Oklahoma, the national champion in 1974 and 1975 and a strong-closing fifth last season, is the heavy favorite in the rugged Big Eight Conference. The experts say Alabama will return to the top of the Southeastern Conference after a one-year absence and the same is expected for Arizona State in the Western Athletic Conference, while Maryland has become an almost automatic choice in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Southwest Conference, having ended years of domination by Texas, appears to be another three-team scramble among last year's contenders — Houston, Texas Tech and Texas A&M.

Among the independents, much of the preseason sentiment belongs to Notre Dame, although Pitt could change that by beating the Fighting Irish in the opening game, just like a year ago.

Tony Dorsett, who became college football's all-time rushing king while leading Pitt to the national championship, is gone, along with 10 other starters, both kicking specialists and Coach of the Year Johnny Majors, who, having lifted Pitt from rags to riches, now will try to bring his alma mater, Tennessee, back to national prominence.

Majors' successor is Jackie Sherrill. Pitt's former assistant head coach, who spent last season as head coach at Washington State. With Dorsett gone, Sherrill will allow quarterback Matt Cavanaugh to throw more to such talented receivers as Gordon Jones and Willie Taylor.

Pitt will be challenged by Penn State in the East, provided the Nittany Lions get past their opener against Rutgers, whose 18-game winning streak is the longest in the country. Yale is the preseason favorite in the Ivy League.

In the SEC, Alabama likely will be challenged by Florida, which never has won the conference championship; defending champion Georgia; Mississippi State, coming off two years probation, and Kentucky, going on two years probation.

Alabama must rebuild its defensive line, but a high-powered offense featuring quarterbacks Jack O'Rear and Jeff Rutledge, receiver Ozzie Newsome and running backs Johnny Davis and Tony Nathan, may overcome any defensive deficiencies.

Maryland has a record string of 20 ACC victories and there seems to be no end to the Terrapins' domination. Mark Manges and Larry Dick could be the best 1-2 quarterback punch in the nation. North Carolina probably will be the No. 1 challenger.

Appalachian State is a solid choice in the Southern Conference, while South Carolina, East Carolina and Memphis State should be the strongest Southern Independents.

In the Midwest, the annual Michigan-Ohio State showdown is expected to decide the Big Ten race, as usual. Although Michigan has a few defensive holes to fill, the Wolverines boast perhaps the premier offensive line in the country, a veteran quarterback in Rick Leach and outstanding runners in Harlan Huckleby and Russell Davis.

The big news is that Ohio

State Coach Woody Hayes, who adores pile-driving fullbacks, is switching to a pony backfield with relative lightweights Jeff Logan and Ron Springs as the chief "ball" carriers. The Buckeyes also have eight returning starters on defense.

In the Midlands, Oklahoma will field the fastest backfield in its history. Quarterback Thomas Lett, halfback Elvis Penick and fullback Kenny King all do the 40 in 4.4 seconds, while the other halfback in the explosive Wishbone, heralded sophomore Billy Sims, lags behind at a mere 4.5. Despite all the speed, the Sooners' season depends on how well nose guard Reggie Kinlaw and linebacker Daryl Hunt recover from knee injuries.

Almost everyone except Kansas and Kansas State — and that means Colorado, Iowa State, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma State — can be considered a Big Eight contender. Oklahoma State has one of the nation's top runners in Terry Miller, who gained 1,546 yards during the regular season and added 173 in the Tangerine Bowl last year.

Notre Dame has its entire defensive unit back and the Irish are booming end Ross Browner as their top Heisman Trophy candidate. If he wins it, Browner would be only the third lineman in history and the first since Leon Hart, another Notre Dame end, did it in 1949.

However, the Irish will have to overcome the loss of Al Hunter, the only 1,000-yard rusher in the school's history, who was suspended for a violation of dormitory rules.

Western Michigan, Ohio University, Bowling Green and Kent State hope to unsettle Ball

State in the Mid-American Conference, while Tulsa and West Texas State are getting plenty of support in the Missouri Valley Conference.

Houston and Texas Tech tied for the Southwest Conference crown a year ago, but Texas A&M may pass them. All three clubs have top-notch quarterbacks — Tech's Rodney Allison, Houston's Danny Davis, A&M's David Walker.

But all eyes in the SWC will be in Texas and Arkansas, where long-time ultra-successful coaches Darrell Royal and Frank Broyles have stepped down. Fred Akers at Texas and Lou Holtz at Arkansas have been entrusted with trying to get their teams back to the top, where they spent so many years.

In the Southland Conference, McNeese State is favored to repeat, with a strong challenge from Southwestern Louisiana.

In the WAC, Arizona State, Brigham Young and Colorado State are making threatening noises. Arizona State has a great receiver in John Jefferson, and BYU has a great passer in Gifford Nielsen. If they were on the same team, the choice would be clear-cut.

Southern Cal's competition on the West Coast is expected to come from UCLA, although Washington, California and Stanford have first-division ambitions.

Sophomore Charles White is the latest in a string of superb Southern Cal runners and Rob Kriel may be the best passer in the school's history. UCLA, which had a great recruiting year, has a top-notch runner of its own in Theotis Brown and a rugged defense led by linebacker Jerry Robinson and tackle Manu Tuiaosopo.

San Jose State must fight off a challenge from Long Beach State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, while San Diego State, a former PCAA member, again could rate among the nation's leading independents.

Seek Better Defense Bucks Eye Improvement

BUCHANAN — Mike Young believes defensive improvement is all his Buchanan football team needs to be a Blossomland contender. The Bucks finished in sixth in the Blossomland last year with a 2-5 mark. But Buchanan yielded at least two touchdowns in every game. Five league foes scored at least 28 points on the Bucks.

"We have to play better defensively," Young says. "We just weren't that tough last year, defensively, especially in the secondary. We have to do a better job defending against the pass and a better job defending against the option." Young does have a good nucleus to work with, returning seven defensive starters. Heading the returnees are linemen Don Burnstead (5-11, 190), Aaron Samson (6-0, 160), Tim McNeil (6-0, 170) and Scott Smith (5-10, 175). Smith is being moved to middle linebacker. In the secondary, speedsters Ricky Davis (5-10, 175), Jim Longier (5-10, 165) and Dan Pinkerton (6-0, 170) are back. "We also have some good juniors who should be able to help us," Young adds. "I think we're going to be able to play much better defense because we should be quicker." Young says husky tackle Jack Ross (6-0, 210) should help defensively. Steve Moore (5-7, 145), Rydell Tutson (5-8, 150) and Craig Vergon (6-0, 180) are also juniors who should see a lot of playing time on the line.

On the outside, Young is counting on juniors Eric Lewis (5-10, 160), John Speckine (6-0, 170) and Bob Miller (5-9, 150), while Jim Anderson (5-8, 150) may gain a starting spot in the secondary.

Young is not as worried about his offense, feeling that an improved passing attack is all that's needed.

"If we can throw the ball with any degree of consistency, we'll be alright," he says. "Our running game is already strong. We have to show a more wide open attack. We're not going to put on an aerial circus, but we need more consistency."

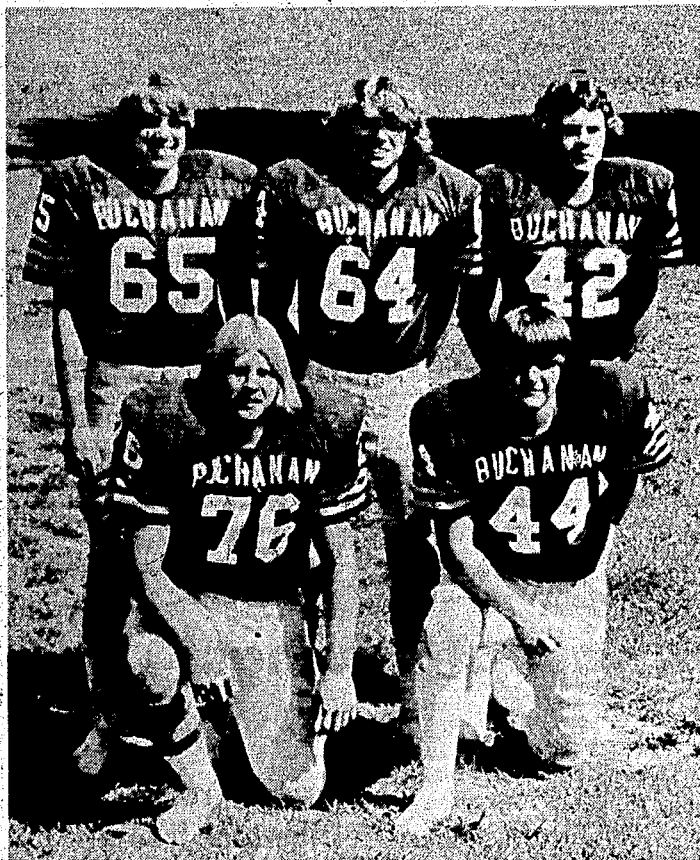

Junior Jeff Butler (5-10, 165) returns as the team's quarterback with Longier and Davis back in the offensive backfield.

McNeil, Samson and Burnstead are back on the line with Pinkerton moving from center to tight end.

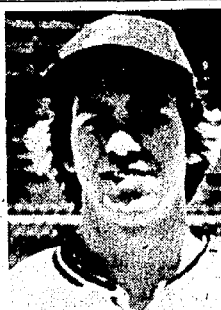

"We have excellent senior leadership," Young says. "My goal this season is for the team to show some progress and I think we're fully capable of doing that."

Young sees Coloma and Dowagiac as the top Blossomland contenders, but adds "Lakeshore and Brandywine are strong year-in and year-out."

IOC Trying To Bring China Into Olympics

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — The people of northern China are born skaters, said Chang Lianhua, a member of the executive committee of Peking's powerful All-China Sports Federation.

"All around the countryside in the north you can see boys and girls nailing simple pieces of steel on their shoes and teaching themselves to skate on the frozen lakes," Chang said. "They have a natural talent for it."

Some day, one of China's teeming 800 millions may win a gold medal in speed skating at the Olympic Games — if political problems are solved and the Chinese achieve their ambition to compete.

"China is very willing to work with other countries to promote international friendship through the development of sport," Chang said in an interview with the Associated Press. "But there are clear principles which must be observed first."

Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee, goes to Peking next month to assess the chances of bringing China into the games.

Meanwhile, Chang's federation has laid its cards clearly on the IOC's table. It insists that China is one country, that Taiwan is part of it and that the IOC must withdraw its recognition of the national Olympic committee of Taiwan before China will play.

Such a proposition would split the IOC from top to bottom and probably would not be passed.

Chang, in Sofia as head of the Chinese delegation at the World University Games, suddenly emerged from the silence and aloofness which the Chinese have preserved since they applied for IOC recognition two years ago.

Charming and affable, he talked about sport in his country and its possible participation in the Olympic Games of the future.

Nee New Irish Assistant Coach

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Dan Nee, a part-time basketball recruiter last season for the University of Notre Dame, has been named an assistant to head coach Digger Phelps. It was announced Wednesday.

Nee, 32, will fill the position vacated earlier this week when Frank McLaughlin resigned to become head coach at Harvard.

Nee is a 1971 graduate of St. Mary's of the Plains, and previously coached high school basketball and cross country in New Jersey.

are the most popular sports in China," he said.

"Of course the standard of basketball is not so high. We have lacked the experience of international competition. But table tennis enjoys a very high standard in our country."

"These sports enjoy great popularity on a mass basis, in schools, in units of the People's Liberation Army and in the countryside."

Chang said soccer, track and field, swimming, volleyball and gymnastics enjoy popularity in varying degrees.

He said he hoped the IOC will follow the example of the International Federation of University Sport which runs the University Games, and recognize that there is one China.

"In these games we have had happy and friendly relations with the sportsmen of other countries."

"But now that we are friends and talking frankly, we have found that the refereeing in gymnastics is not entirely satisfactory. We have made our opinions known."

Nelson Not Sorry For Early Career

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer

Tom Watson is approaching the $300,000 mark in Professional Golfers Association tour winnings this season.

That's $117,000 more than faded golfer Byron Nelson made in his career — which included victories in 52 events, with 11 in a row at one stretch.

"No, I'm not sorry that I didn't play in this era," says the 61-year-old Texan, who won money in 113 consecutive events. "I didn't get rich, but I earned a living."

It depends, perhaps, on how one defines "rich."

Nelson is the only person ever voted "Athlete of the Year" by the Associated Press for two consecutive years.

Ask who the greatest golfers who ever lived are and Nelson's name would jump right in with that of Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Bobby Jones, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

"Now that's rich."

And how's this for rich: Gordie Howe, Al Kaline, Jesse Owens, Tony Trabert, Julius Boros and Frank Gifford?

BYRON NELSON

Usually the only time so many sports superstars are in the same place is at a hall of fame induction banquet. But Nelson and the others were together at a luncheon in Detroit recently to mark the 10th anniversary of the Lincoln-Mercury Sports Panel.

That's a lot of class and talent under one roof. Aptly, the luncheon was in one of the classiest places around — the Plaza Hotel in the Renaissance Center.

The seven, when they can break away from their busy schedules, have collectively addressed about two million persons throughout the country. They've given talks to youth and adult groups alike, auto shows (as might be expected), 4-H Club conventions, Boy Scout jamborees, charity rallies, college commencements, banquets and service club meetings.

"Just for someone to be able to say they once met Jesse Owens means an awful lot," said Walter Walla, Ford Motor Co. vice president and Lincoln-Mercury general manager.

Commercialism is kept to a minimum in the panel's association with the company, Walla said.

"We don't push it," he said, adding that just having the sports greats names minimally associated with the company is good for image.

A letter to Walla from C. Carson Conrad, executive director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness congratulated the panel.

It said, in part, that the members "exemplify our traditional values in American life as well as in the free enterprise system. Through their many appearances during the past decade, they have assisted greatly in interpreting the role of sports in American life to millions of our people."

Perhaps that's a bit mushy, but you get the picture.

Schools Urged To Comply With MHSAA Regulations

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Public and private schools are being urged by the state's school chief to voluntarily comply with rules and regulations of the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA). Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley ruled two weeks ago that the association doesn't have the authority to regulate interscholastic athletics in Michigan.

State Schools Supt. John Porter said Wednesday a task force of state educators met here earlier this week to review Kelley's opinion.

"It was the consensus of those present that schools who are now members of the MHSAA should agree to cooperate on a voluntary basis and abide by the rules and regulations of that organization," Porter said. "It was agreed that enforcement of the rules should be carried out by each local school district."

Porter said the task force also discussed the possibility that litigation might be begun by the state Board of Education to determine whether the MHSAA might be maintained in its present form.

Wake Forest Tourney Host

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest University will be the host team for the 1978 NCAA Golf Championship Tournament, university officials announced Wednesday.

The tournament will be played May 23-26, 1978, on the Bermuda Run Golf Course at nearby Clemmons. The annual event brings together the nation's top 30 teams, and top 30 individuals plus other players for a total of 186 competitors.

Wealthy Apples Orphaned By Price Dispute

By JOE HERMAN
Staff Writer

A price disagreement between M. Steffen and Company, a cider and vinegar operation in Coloma, and the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association (MACMA) could result in several tons of the area's wealthy apple crop going unpicked and unsold, according to Gilbert Duverney, plant manager of the Steffen company.

Duverney said that the Steffen company attempted to buy Wealthy apples for use in vinegar at $2.50 per hundred-weight. Tom Butler, MACMA Secretary, said that the bargaining committee would not accept any price below $4 for the apples.

Because of the early harvest season this year, many of the wealthy apple manufacturers have been able to use Jonathan apples from southern Illinois rather than Wealthy in their product, Duverney explained. The depressed Wealthy market has left many growers unable to sell their apples.

"We are negotiating with sauce companies now," Butler stated, "and the indications are that we can receive a favorable price for the apples going that route. The apples can be stored for processing or the grower can sell them through normal market channels."

Butler said that accepting the $2.50 Steffen bid would upset the entire apple market at this time.

"Some brokers want to cash in on the Wealthy business," Butler added. "The lowest juice market price in the nation is $4, and our apples should be worth at least that."

Duverney said that Wealthy apples are unacceptable for use as a cider apple, and prices for vinegar apples have always been 40-50 per cent lower than juice.

"We ran a test batch of cider from about 33,000 pounds of Wealthy apples last week," Duverney said, "and there is no way we could use it for juice. It tasted like it was almost vinegar already."

The Steffen company had to turn away around 100,000 pounds of harvested Wealthy apples, Duverney stated, and many growers will let the rest of their crop drop on the ground. Duverney said that many growers were willing to sell their apples at the $2.50 price offered.

Duverney explained that buying the apples without MACMA's permission would violate the bargaining act, leaving the Steffen company open for a possible lawsuit by MACMA.

"We get calls every day from growers who want to sell their apples," said Duverney. "After this weekend, however, Wealthy apples won't be any

VIRUS-FREE PLANTS: Larry Krieger, president of Krieger's wholesale nursery, displays virus-free Heritage red raspberries growing in one of three screenhouses at the nursery. Krieger's is only nursery in Michigan State university virus-free testing program. Krieger said virus-free plants could revitalize black raspberry production in Michigan, and improve red raspberry and grape production. Early results have shown virus-free conditions improve plant vigor and productivity. Mike Thomas, district horticultural agent, said virus has been major killer of black raspberry plants since late sixties, when growers were no longer allowed to use DDT for control. Plants in Krieger's nursery will be ready for sale in fall, and each mother plant will reproduce around 20 more plants, according to Krieger. (Staff photo) good for vinegar because they will be too dry. We need the apples and the supply is there. As it is, we will probably be forced to buy concentrate for vinegar from foreign countries."

Butler said that he met with growers agreeing that the $2.50 price was unacceptable. Butler added that the Wealthy crop represents less than one per cent of the Michigan apple total.

Delicious Crop Pegged Below Last Year's

The Michigan Crop Reporting Service reports that Red and Golden Delicious apple varieties were hit the hardest by spring frosts this year.

An apple variety survey conducted by the service shows that larger crops than last year are expected for all varieties except Delicious. This year's Red Delicious harvest in Michigan is predicted to be 70 million pounds, down 11 million from 1976, and 44 million pounds from the 1975 harvest. Golden Delicious production is seen at 27 million pounds, compared to 28 million in 1976 and 41 million two years ago.

"Most other varieties grown in the state are predicted to net a harvest somewhere between the 1975 and 1976 levels. Jonathan production is expected to be up 12 per cent at 140 million pounds. McIntosh is forecast at up 39 per cent and Northern Spy up 27 per cent, producing 110 and 70 million pounds respectively.

Limed Alfalfa

Discredited

Michigan State University researchers have found that lime-coated alfalfa seed is no different than regular alfalfa seed.

Dr. M.B. Tesar, MSU crop scientist, said that at least two seed companies are promoting lime coating claiming a saving in seed cost because the coating helps establish a better stand.

Clare Musgrove, Berrien county extension director, said that some local seed companies are promoting lime-pelleted alfalfa seed also.

The MSU tests checked yield of alfalfa in fields seeded at rates ranging from one to 24 pounds per acre.

"If any differences favoring lime coating had existed, they would have been evident at low seed rates," said Tesar, "but none were obtained."

Tesar added that results from tests at another university showed similar results. Other alfalfa seedling experiments have shown that seeding at 12 pounds per acre yields more than at eight pounds. Tesar said that judging from those results using lime-pelleted seed may actually result in lower yields in the third or fourth year since one-third of the lime-pelleted seed is lime. A grower planting 12 pounds of lime-pelleted seed would actually be planting eight pounds of seed and four pounds of lime per acre.

MiOSHA delaying Hardhats, Goggles, Etc.

The Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration (MiOSHA) has decided to reconsider proposed regulations which would have required extensive use of goggles, hard hats, and steel-toed shoes for farmers and farm workers, according to Donald Shepard, operations manager of the Michigan Agricultural Services Association (MASA).

A total of seven proposed standards were sent to a MiOSHA advisory committee for reconsideration following a MASA presentation at a recent meeting in Detroit of the Occupational Safety Standards Commission. Along with the protective apparel, regulations on conveyors, ladders, hand tools and chemicals were sent back to committee.

Shepard, who attended the meeting, told the safety commission that most of the proposed safety regulations are repetitious and can be simplified. Shepard said that he believes the safety commission is concerned with providing standards which are both useful and realistic.

"They want to provide safety standards which will be effective and good for both the farm family and the employee," Shepard stated. "I believe our presentation tipped the scales in favor of agriculture."

Another concern voiced at the meeting by the MASA spokesman was the lack of representation of farm employers and employees on the Agricultural Advisory Committee of the Michigan Department of Labor.

COFFEE COMEBACK

The USDA forecasts a 14 per cent increase in world coffee production this year. Biggest reason for the gain is an 80 per cent increase in Brazil's crop. This year's crop is seen at 465,000 tons, but is still below 1974 and 1975 levels.

Removing Tissue Is Hamburger Helper

Juicier, more tender hamburgers can be made from ground beef that has had the connective tissue removed, says Dr. H. Russell Cross, a food technologist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Americans consume about 11 billion pounds of ground beef every year, mostly in the form of hamburgers. Much of this ground beef comes from cows 8-10 years old. The meat from these older beef cows has more flavor than the meat from younger animals, but it is tough due to the type and amount of connective tissue it contains.

A process called desligning can be used to remove this tough connective tissue. Beef to be desligned is first coarsely ground in a meat grinder and then placed in a machine which separates the connective tissue by forcing it out under pressure. This process also removes bone chips or other contaminants that may be in the meat.

Grapes Down In Eastern States

Although Michigan's Concord grape crop will be below average production again this year, Michigan is the only one of the Great Lake states expected to show an increase in production from last year.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates Michigan's Concord production at 26,000 tons, compared to last year's crop of 14,500 tons. New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio are all predicted to have only half the crop size they had last year.

New York, the largest Concord producer of the Great Lake states, is predicted to produce only 92,000 tons this year after a crop of 185,000 tons in 1976. Pennsylvania's crop is pegged at 30,000 tons, down 28,000 from last year, and Ohio is expected to drop from 15,000 tons in 1976 to 6,000 this year.

While the Michigan crop is up this year, it is still approximately half of a normal crop based on the last five years of production. The USDA prediction for Michigan compares closely to the mid-June processors' guess-timate of 24,500 tons. Nationwide, the USDA predicts one of the lowest Concord harvests in more than five years. The crop is forecast at 277,000 tons, compared to 402,000 in 1975 and 1976.

Three New York processors have announced prices of $175 and $180 per ton for Concord grapes measuring about a 10 per cent sugar content. Ohio's major processor has announced its price of $185 per ton for 16 per cent brix, and Michigan Pink Concord is reported as selling at $180 per ton with no sugar test.

Popcorn Now Popular Crop

Popcorn production almost doubled in Michigan last year as sales climbed over the $1 million mark. At an average of 2,800 pounds per acre, Michigan produced 12.8 million pounds in 1976 from 4,600 harvested acres. The 1975 production was 7.2 million pounds from 3,600 acres.

Popcorn is a tricky crop to grow, dry and store with techniques differing from field corn. Kernels must not be cracked in harvesting or processing. Moisture content at 13 per cent is also vital.

Storage Loans Popular Among Area Farmers

Area grain farmers are taking advantage of low interest loans to install additional storage and drying facilities to handle this year's excess grain supply.

Milton Francis, head of the Berrien county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, said that around 15 Berrien county farmers have already applied for loans ranging from $2,000 to the maximum level allowed of $50,000. Under the government loan program, eligible producers can borrow up to 85 per cent of the cost of buying and installing needed storage facilities and drying equipment at an interest rate of seven per cent.

Previously, farmers could borrow up to $25,000 to cover 70 per cent of the cost, at 7 1/2 per cent interest.

Francis said that the low interest rates for storage are one of several measures being taken by the government to help farmers deal with this year's surplus of grain.

"The tremendous increase in grain production in recent years was not accompanied by a corresponding expansion in storage facilities," said James Vogt, Van Buren ASCS director. "Today, with farm prices for wheat frequently below the established loan level, it is even more evident that our farmers should take immediate steps to increase their farm storage facilities."

Francis added that much of the 1976 wheat crop is still unsold. The government has also initiated a three-year storage program for the 1976 crop, paying farmers 20 cents per bushel annually to defray storage costs. The producer continues to own the wheat, but he cannot sell for three years unless market prices are 140 per cent above the current loan rates.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW?

Right now your probably saying to yourself... "The face is familiar but I just can't put a name with it". Well, if we were to tell you that he was known as the "Iron Chancellor", and had a famous World War II battleship named after him, you would know immediately that the stern looking gentleman pictured is none other than Otto von Bismarck. Now guessing the names of famous people from clues like the ones we just gave you is just part of the fun during 1060 WHFB's new "People You Know" contest starting Monday, August 29. The second part is collecting the $60 in cash and prizes you could win by playing. And the third part of the fun is a trip worth $600 to either Disney World, Acapulco or fabulous Las Vegas. And all you have to do to be eligible to play and win is to send a postcard with your name and phone number to "People You Know", WHFB, P.O. Box 608, Benton Harbor, Mi. 49022. Be listening to 1060 WHFB thruout the day for complete contest rules. The fun starts, Monday, August 29.

STEVENSVILLE

Council Vacates Street For Duplex

The Stevensville village council after a public hearing last night gave final approval to vacating a section of Phillips drive to permit a duplex development.

According to the council, the 66-foot-wide drive, 131 feet long, is not used for any purpose and deadends at Chessie system railroad tracks.

Council action came at the request of Alvin R. Deckert, St. Joseph, developer of the duplex development.

Under the council action, half the width of the drive will go to Deckert's property and the remainder will become an easement for the Indiana and Michigan Electric Co. The council voted to reserve surface water drainage rights over the vacated street.

In further action related to the Deckert development 1, the council meeting as the zoning board of appeals recommended granting size variances for three lots owned by Deckert. The lots are located along Karen court adjacent to the vacated street.

Final action on the recommendations will be taken Sept. 1.

According to the current village zoning ordinance, lots for duplexes must contain 15,000 square feet. The three lots are each smaller than that, village officials said.

Deckert said he plans to build a $35,000 duplex on each of the three lots. No private citizens attended the public hearing last night.

$2.2 Million Is Sought In Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five-day-old Isis Sarai's father was shot to death by a police officer before she was born. Her mother is asking the city for $2.2 million to pay for the child's upbringing.

Ronald Burkholder, a 35-year-old biochemist and the common-law husband of Maria Herbst, was shot to death on the sidewalk outside his laboratory Aug. 4, just 17 days before his daughter was born.

Sgt. Kurt Barz, a 10-year veteran of the police force, claimed that he fired in self-defense after Burkholder had assumed a "martial arts" stance and "lunged" at him. Barz was removed from field duty pending an investigation.

Some of the facts surrounding the shooting are in dispute, but two things are clear: He was shot six times and he was naked at the time.

Burkholder's friends challenged Barz' account, saying Burkholder was a proponent of nonviolence and was not trained in martial arts.

Jobless Vet Plan Presented

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — About 200,000 jobless veterans will be put back to work under a plan being implemented by the Veterans Administration, VA chief Max Cleland told the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it is re-examining whether the public will accept a cutback in Saturday mail deliveries.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said that before any decision is made to reduce service the Postal Service will conduct a "comprehensive study of what the public wishes."

Last spring, the Commission on Postal Service recommended that Saturday service be eliminated, saving an estimated $400 million a year. Bailar at the time praised the study group and said the Postal Service was considering the move.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Clerk's Suspicion Triggers Arrests

Three youths were arrested Thursday and booked for investigation of charges of breaking an entering a motor vehicle after a youth attempted to cash a check allegedly stolen from a pickup truck in Watervliet township, Berrien sheriff's officers said.

Deputy Sam Donoho reported a clerk at the Hartford Shopping center became suspicious when youth could not produce identification while attempting to cash a check for $45.

The clerk called David M.

Eltzroth, of 6779 First street, Coloma, on whose account the check was to be drawn, and learned that 24 blank checks were among items stolen from Eltzroth's pickup truck, Donoho said. The theft was reported Wednesday while the truck was parked off North Watervliet road.

Dogoho said the three suspects were taken into custody after he traced a vehicle the clerk saw the youth leave in after she refused to cash a check.

According to Donoho, other unsuccessful attempts had been made to cash the allegedly stolen checks in the Hartford area.

Booked at the Berrien county jail were: Robert Hutchins, 17, of 7280 Helen street, Coloma township, and Arthur Alken, 18, of 6248 John street, Hagar township, Donoho reported. A 15-year-old girl was reported released to her parents pending petitioning to juvenile court.

Berrien sheriff's officers reported these thefts Thursday: —Cash totaling $450 from the home of Guy English, 1407 Glenview drive, Lincoln township.

—A mobile home frame valued at $175 owned by Oscar Blair, of Covert, while the frame was stored at Rick's Body shop, 146 Fairview road, Sodus township.

—A 12-foot boat valued at $125 owned by Victor Spridger, 219 Spring Lake road, Gallen, from a mooring at that residence.

Benton township police reported three thefts: —A 4 1/2 month old brindle Great Dane valued at $150 from the Dan Burnett residence, Mary's apartments, Britain avenue.

—Cash totaling $100 from the home of W. Kurland, 2248 Lawrence.

Have a Pepsi Day

Michigan mom's

Easy-to-apply Pepsi-Cola iron-on decal.

Instructions:

1. For best results, use permanent-press materials made of 50% cotton and 50% polyester. (100% cotton materials do not hold color after repeated washings.)
2. Cut out the Pepsi-Cola slogan along the dotted line.
3. Place a protective piece of cloth over ironing board to keep excess ink from staining ironing-board cover.
4. Slip the T-shirt over the end of the ironing board so that the front (or back) is directly over the protective cloth on the board.

5. Place the Pepsi-Cola slogan face down on the area of the T-shirt you want to decorate. Place a clean sheet of paper directly over the Pepsi-Cola slogan so that the entire inked surface is covered.

6. Apply dry, hot iron (linen setting) with firm, even pressure over entire surface for 30 seconds, not longer. (Important: Allow iron to reach proper temperature—350°—or transfer will not take.)

7. Allow to cool for at least one minute before removing paper.

Caution:

If you have never used an iron before, have an adult member of your family apply the heat transfer for you to make sure your T-shirt comes out just right.

Laundrying:

No special laundering required. The colors will mellow with the first washing to a slightly faded look which will not wash out if you have followed instructions carefully. Wash and dry with other permanent-press clothes, using the proper settings or temperatures. Do not use chlorine bleach on any permanent-press materials.

If properly applied and laundered, your Pepsi-Cola slogan will last through repeated machine washings and dryings.
